A Ticket for Fool Land
The Deceived Burglars
Consumption—Taxation
Well Named Mr. Petty

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1920.

The ditty written by Clara Smith Hamon just before Jake Hamon, the Oklahoma politician, was shot dead, contains these lines, on which every clergyman might base a good sermon:

"Lesson, lesson. But what good are lessons? Who heeds a lesson? I knew all that I now know when I bought my ticket for fool land. Now I've lived through another lesson, which will mean no more than others do to me, and—puff—I am gone."

Every day young men and young women take tickets for fool land. No diary, no warning will stop them.

An intelligent jeweler in New Jersey determined that burglars should work for a living. He had three big safes, one containing his valuables, two empty. The burglars came, with great difficulty broke open an empty safe, went away disgusted.

The English had this good idea before that jeweler. Lord Fisher writes of the battleship Queen Elizabeth on page 69, first volume of his "Memories:"

"Lucky she did leave! The German submarine, prowling around for a fortnight looking for her (and neglecting all the other battleships), blew up her duplicate wooden image."

This suggestion is humbly offered to Secretary Daniels, U. S. N.

If foreign fleets ever attack us, submarines, directed by flying machines, via wireless, will deal with them. Attacking battleships and destroyers will be on the lookout for periscopes. Why not, in addition to the real submarine fleet, build a few fleets of imitation submarines, the imitation to consist of a small propelling engine below the water, propelling a regulation periscope above the water. The enemy might be kept busy firing at imitation periscopes, not knowing which were real, while the real submarine, moving among the periscope imitations, crept up to do the damage.

Automobiles killed 3,808 people in this country in 1919.

Tuberculosis germs killed more than 100,000. The country gets excited about the 3,808 automobile deaths and a hundred laws in a year are suggested. No excitement about the 100,000 deaths from the white plague, no serious suggestion that the plague be stamped out, as it could be by proper care and feeding of children under five years of age. Consumption that kills starts usually before the fifth year.

Dean Wigmore, head of the Law School of Northwestern University in Chicago, suggests that rents could be fixed, as railroad rates are fixed, by making dwellings public utilities. That might work, but it probably would not.

A simpler plan would be to exempt from taxation, just as you exempt orphan asylums, every home and every co-operative apartment house in which ownership represents an investment not exceeding $15,000.

Could anything be more idiotic than taxing the home in which a man serves his country by bringing up children to do the work of the next generation?

Do you doubt that the founder of Christianity if HE returned would wonder at a tax on workmen's cottages? Would He not order it transformed from that cottage to the rich man's tax-free church? He would.

The Rev. Mr. Petty, secretary of an important Baptist ministers' conference, criticises Monsignor Lavelle of the Catholic clergy for referring to the United States as the "Greater Ireland."

The Reverend Petty should know that this is "Greater Ireland," for of Irishmen and their descendants, there are more in America than there are in Ireland, or soon will be.

This is the "Greater Ireland," as it is also the "Greater Jerusalem." There were never one-quarter as many Jews in Jerusalem as are now in New York.

We have cities with more Germans than many cities in Germany. We have large sections chiefly Italian, and it is to be hoped that these sections will increase.

The United States is fortunate in its Irish, Jewish, German, Italian, French, Polish, Scotch, English, Russian and all other nationalities. Each country sends us its ambitious, enterprising, men and women—only courage and ambition will send a poor man across the ocean to an unknown land.

CONFESSES KILLING HAMON

Girl Tells Why She Murdered Oklahoma National Committeeman

By PERRY M. ROSS.

Copyright, 1920, by Universal Service. All Rights Reserved.

San Antonio, Texas, Dec. 7.—Clara Smith Hamon, who has been widely sought since November 21 for the fatal shooting of Jake L. Hamon, millionaire oil man and Republican national committeeman of Oklahoma, at Ardmore, Okla., in an exclusive interview today with Universal Service, confessed that she fired the shot that caused Hamon's death, and said she was willing to stand trial and "let God and a jury of twelve tried and true women judge her act."

Mrs. Hamon groped through the long and tragic circumstances leading to the killing of Hamon, his courtship, his faults, his virtues and many little incidents that marred their happiness through the long years of their association in a voice choked with emotion and deadened with grief. The story was told the Universal Service correspondent on a lonely road about twenty-eight miles from here.

This correspondent got a "tip" of Mrs. Hamon's whereabouts when he

H. V. GREENE CO. BECOMES NATIONAL SERVICE, INC.

The firm of H. V. Greene Company passed out of existence today, when State Commissioner of Corporations William D. T. Trefry authorized the change of name to the National Service. Inc. H. V. Greene ceases to be president of the concern, under the reorganization and becomes chairman of the board of directors. John J. Arnold becomes president of the new concern, with Charles E. Rodway treasurer. Together with William Burns, Rodway and Arnold will constitute the majority of the new board of directors.

FLEET TO ESCORT CONSTANTINE TO GREECE

London, Dec. 7.—Formal invitation to Constantine to return to Greece to resume the throne will be made tomorrow, said an Athens dispatch to the Daily Express. According to present plans, Constantine will travel from an Italian port on the Greek liner Patris, escorted by three Greek cruiser, and will land at Piraeus, the port of Athens.

PROVIDENCE TAXI DRIVER ROBBED

Providence, Dec. 7.—Nicholas Rosso, a taxi driver, reported to the police that he was beaten, robbed and ejected from his car by two men he droven to Greenville. The men drove away in the stolen machine, Rosso stated.

N. Y. MAN, ILL AT LEE, KILLS SELF WITH RIFLE

Lee, Dec. 7.—Alfred C. Hope, 32 years old, committed suicide by shooting himself with a rifle. He was an electrotyper and had been here five weeks for his health. He was a son of Alfred Hope of Brooklyn.

STUDENT IS NEAR DEATH

Hilda Barney Shot in Indiana While on Wall With College Athlete

Green Castle, Ind., Dec. 7.—Shot while sitting on the "Old Stone Wall," a rendezvous famous in the traditions of De Pauw University, Miss Hilda Barney, a student member of a sorority and daughter of a Boston family, is near death.

W. P. Sackett of Green Castle is alleged to have fired the shot. Mr. Sackett told President George R. Cross of the university that he had fired a revolver in the drive to scare off prowlers at the time Miss Barney was shot.

President Cross said that Miss Barney, accompanied by Mark Bills, a fraternity man and man of the university basketball team, had strolled to the well known wall.

They were sitting on the wall, which is in the rear of the drive ending in Mr. Sackett's garage, when a shot was fired. Miss Barney fell, with a bullet in her side. Bills called to the sorority house and summoned a physician.

President Cross summoned medical aid from Chicago and notified the girl's parents to hasten to Green Castle.

RAIN NOT TO BAR FUND TAG DAYS

Regardless of weather conditions, the double tag day arranged for next Friday and Saturday will be conducted throughout Greater Boston in aid of the Boston Juvenile Christmas Basket Fund. In case of snow or rain, or if it is extremely cold, the girls who have volunteered their services as tag sellers will be stationed in places where they will be under cover.

Many girls from leading schools and colleges of Boston and vicinity have already offered their services, and have been assigned to attractive locations. In addition a large number of young women who have half a holiday on Saturday have added their names to the list of persons anxious

Avoids Mention of Nations' League

Washington, Dec. 7.—Calling attention to the fact that the United States is the "Sample democracy of the world" and as such is constantly under world scrutiny, President Woodrow Wilson in his last congressional message today urged upon Congress the duty of making this nation the champion of right and justice in world affairs.

Only by rectifying wrongs within our borders and championing the right wherever it is in danger, the President pointed out, can the United States fulfill its destiny and keep faith with the Fathers of the republic.

The President's message made no mention of the League of Nations, nor any international aspect in particular. It was a short message and more than half of it was devoted to domestic affairs.

At the last moment President Wilson yielded to the wishes of his physician, and did not attempt to go to the Capitol and deliver the message in person before a joint session of the two Houses. Instead, a few minutes before noon the message was transmitted to each House separately and there was read to the members.

The President said in part:

"This is the time of all others when democracy should prove its purity and its spiritual power to prevail. It is surely the manifest destiny of the United States to lead in the attempt to make this spirit prevail.

"There are two ways in which the United States can assist to accomplish this great object:

"First, by offering the example within her own borders of the will and power of democracy to make and enforce laws which are unquestionably just and which are equal in their its full right to labor and yet at the same time safeguards the integrity of Prosperity, which is devoted to the development of industry and the increase of the necessary wealth of the world.

"Second, by standing for right and justice as towards individual nations.

"The law of democracy is for the protection of the weak nation, the nation which is struggling towards the right and towards the right of recognition and privilege in the family of nations.

"The United States cannot refuse this role of champion without putting the stigma of rejection upon the great and devoted men who brought its government into existence and established it in the face of almost universal opposition and intrigue, even in the face of wanton force, as, for example, the Orders in Council of Great Britain and the Arbitrary Napoleonic decrees, which involved us in what we know as the War of 1812."

YARDS OF KISSES SENT BY WIFE

Barnstable, Dec. 7.—Letters bearing yards of kisses and barrels of love" figured today in the divorce suit of Mrs. Ethel S. Kinraide of Barnstable for separate maintenance from Thomas Burton Kinraide, wealthy clubman of Jamaica Plain and Boston.

The letters were written by Mrs. Kinraide to her husband. They were introduced by Kinraide's counsel, to offset her testimony that she did not love him when she married him, and took him to please her mother.

Mrs. Kinraide in cross-examination repeated her testimony of yesterday regarding her loveless courtship.

She is suing Kinraide for alleged gross and confirmed intoxication. The proceeding is pending in Probate Court. She married the clubman in 1905.

WIFE SUES HUSBAND'S FATHER FOR $20,000

Mrs. Bertha L. Guild of Needham is seeking to obtain $20,000 damages from her father-in-law, Chester Guild of Newton, for alleged alienation of the affections of her husband, before a Suffolk jury. Mrs. Guild alleges that in November, 1917, Guild persuaded her husband to leave her. She brought suit for alienation in August, 1918.

Single Irish Parliament Demanded; Plunkett Doubts Peace Is in Sight

London, Dec. 7.—The whole Irish truce situation was canvassed during a long conference of Premier Lloyd George and Sir Hamar Greenwood, Secretary for Ireland, at the Premier's residence today.

By International News Service.

London, Dec. 7.—Sinn Fein peace terms, as revealed today by the Daily Graphic, are at wide variance with the proposals contained in the home rule bill now being debated in the House of Lords.

According to this newspaper they provide for a single Irish parliament instead of a dual parliament as set forth in the home rule bill.

Sinn Fein insists upon the right to set up its own militia and police force, but does not wish an Irish navy. Furthermore, Sinn Fein asks for fiscal autonomy and the power to negotiate commercial treaties on the principle of Irish independence.

It is reported that a Sinn Fein envoy has been in London for five weeks negotiating with the foreign office, but has now returned to Ireland to consult with republican leaders.

Sir Horace Plunkett, famous Irish leader, who will sail for New York tomorrow on the liner Baltic, does not believe that the peace negotiations will be successful. Sir Horace is one of the originators of the movement for a dominion form of government in Ireland. Discussing the Irish outlook today he said:

"If any peace proposals have been made and considered they came from the pacifist side and are not recognized by leaders of the republican movement. The government instituted a terrorist campaign, but it failed. Now the government is attempting to work through economic pressure, but this will fail also. There is no tangible prospect for a truce. The whole thing amounts to, this: The government has a pious hope that proposals for peace will be negotiated by the party which is demanding freedom for Ireland."

Sir Horace denied that Irish matters were concerned in his American

WOMAN SUES COLLEGE GIRL IN AUTO MISHAP

Williamstown, Dec. 7.—Alleging that she received injuries from which she is not likely to recover, Susan McCormick has entered suit in the Superior Court for $15,000 against Miss Josephine Schelling of Allentown, Pa., a student at Zenith College. Miss McCormick on May 12, 1920, was hit while on a crosswalk on Main street here by an automobile owned by Miss Schelling and driven by a Williams College student.

HOLLAND TO PROTEST JAPS' CABLE SEIZURE

Washington, Dec. 7.—The government of Holland has served formal notice that it has a large financial interest in the former German Pacific cables and will appeal to the League of Nations if Japan insists on keeping them. This fact developed at a session of the international communications congress here.

MATERNITY BILL ASKS $300,000

Commissioner Urges Aid for Mother and Babe Whether Rich or Poor

Declaring that 40 per cent. of the maternal and infant deaths in this State the first six months of this year were readily preventable, the Special Commission on Maternity Benefits today recommended to the special session of the Legislature the immediate passage of a maternity-benefits law, including both pre-natal and post-natal care to mothers and their children "regardless of financial condition."

Advice, instruction and nursing care will be given to all expectant mothers, financial distress and such other care under the provisions of the proposed law. Hospital treatment would be given when the mother or infant is could be given as was found to be necessary by the State Department of Public Welfare or by local authorities.

According to a statement submitted by the commission in submitting its report to the Legislature, this additional care would include "subsistence."

The commission recommended that an appropriation of $300,000 be made to carry on the maternity work for the first year, the administration of the new system to be directed by the State Department of Public Health. The commission also recommended that supervision over the lying-in hospitals be transferred to the health department.

BOARD'S FINDINGS.

A summary of the conclusions contained in the report follows:

"1—We find the mortality in Massachusetts both of mothers and infants is much larger than it should be, or would be if proper care were taken of childbearing women. We also find these disasters are due not to poverty of the afflicted families or to their social status, but rather to their ignorance of hygiene.

"2—We are, therefore, forced to the conclusion that no sufficient relief would result from the distribution of maternity benefits in the form of cash, as proposed in various bills submitted to us.

"3—We believe, instead, child-bearing can be better protected by providing an adequate supply of maternity nursing service through the Department of Public Health.

"4—Pre-natal, obstetric and post-natal nursing visits are of educational and life-saving value, and we believe such service should be free to all.

"5—So far the resident nursing needed and the equal need of housekeepers, we believe all who can afford to pay for it should do so. But we recognize that, because of the present shortage, such service is often not now obtainable by families able and willing to pay for it. This shortage is due in large part to the lack of organizations that would make such service more available.

"6—Local agencies should be re-

Boxer Before Death Accuses Man Who Is Being Sought by the Police

Providence, Dec. 7.—Jamie Rafuse, a boxer known as "Young Al Delmont," who was shot during a fight over a woman at the Franklin Cafe, died today in the Rhode Island Hospital.

Just before his death Rafuse accused Nicola Corvella of having shot him. He also accused Corvella of having been a white slaver.

The police are looking for Corvella, but so far have gained no clew to his movements. The "girl" in the case is believed to be Mrs. Hazzelle, and she is held with two other women as witnesses.

SUSPECT ACCUSED BY GIRL

Identifies Prisoner as Man Who Vanished With $2,000 Worth of Diamonds

Isaac Saperstein, twenty-three years old, of No. 148 Woodward street, South Boston, was arrested in the Suffolk County Court House today, charged with the larceny of $2,000 worth of diamonds from the store of L. H. Burack & Co., No. 5 Bromfield street.

Miss Ethel Fisher, 18 years old, clerk in the jewelry store, positively identified Saperstein as the man who snatched the tray of diamonds and fled while she was in an adjoining room telephoning her employer.

Saperstein, who appeared in the courtroom in connection with another charge of larceny, was recognized from the description furnished by Miss Fisher, and arrested by Special Officer Manning of the City Hall station station.

Manning recognized Saperstein as a man whose photograph was in the Rogues Gallery, and took him to the City Hall Avenue Station on suspicion. After the identification was made and the additional charge lodged against the prisoner.

A Suggestion

Christmas is coming. Many homes cannot join in the Christmas spirit of good will and good cheer, because their savings are tied up in four closed banks. Never, in many a life time will such a thing again happen.

Bank Commissioner Allen wants to help these people, but under the law can do nothing for them for four or five months. The bankers should help and help before Christmas.

These saving depositors have bank books worth much money, and good as security for loans. The bankers, through their associations, should arrange to have all the Boston banks lend a certain percentage of money on these books. No one bank can or should do it all.

Such loans will bring happiness to many, and in some cases will keep the wolf away from the door. Such loans will put money into circulation to the advantage of the butcher and baker and candlestick maker. Everybody will be benefited.

We are ready to do our part. We want everybody to have a Merry Christmas.

visit. He said he was going to the United States for a rest.

Timothy Healy telegraphed to the Irish Express, advocating action by King George to end Irish hostilities. Healy said he thought the King should be advised to exercise his prerogatives "to summon a parliament in Ireland" pending the negotiations for a truce.

The object of such a meeting would be to take preliminary steps for the creation of an Irish constitution. According to Healy, the King is empowered by an old law to summon an Irish parliament.

British Officer Wounded in Fighting Near Cork

Cork, Dec. 7.—Firing broke out at Charleville today and a British officer was seriously wounded.

Seven prominent Sinn Feiners have been deported from Bantry upon a British cruiser.

Black and Tan policemen were active all night and raids were made at East Cork, Killeagh, Limerick City and Kinsale. Many arrests were made.

Members of the British Labor Commission, who are now in Cork, have been witnesses of many shooting affrays and holdups in the streets.

A civilian was killed at Rally Shannon today by soldiers. The soldiers were searching a crowd when some of the men broke away and ran. The soldiers fired at the fugitives and one fell dead.

$350,000 Mansion for Coolidge?

Washington, Dec. 7.—Vice-President Coolidge will not live in a $35 per month frame house, but in a $350,000 government mansion if a bill prepared by Senator Elkins of West Virginia is passed by Congress.

"It is humiliating to the American people that the second highest official of this government should be compelled to live around in hotels or privately owned residences, spending half of his salary for rent," said the Senator.

A committee of two members from each House are authorized by the bill to put its provisions immediately into effect.

Quincy Police Find Victim Was Choked, but Lives; Assailant Gets Six Months

"Take me to the police station. I killed a woman and want to give myself up." is what Benjamin Minds, twenty-five years old, of Boston, said to a chauffeur at Quincy Point, according to testimony in the Quincy Court today.

Minds was charged with assaulting Mrs. Molly Fisher, mother of two children, at her home, No. 18 Harrington avenue, Quincy Point. He was found guilty and sentenced to six months in the House of Correction.

Police Sergeant Daniel H. Doran told the court that Minds arrived at the station with the chauffeur and said he killed Mrs. Fisher and that the police would find her body at the Harrington avenue address. Mrs. Fisher was found sitting in a chair in the kitchen of her home. She declared that Minds boarded with her in Chelsea and began to show her attentions to which she objected. She ordered Minds out.

Yesterday Mrs. Fisher was at her home when Minds called. He choked her into insensibility and left the house.

Lawrence, Dec. 7.—The announcement that the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company will cease to operate the old Pleasant Valley line to Haverhill may be the means of amending the present jitney ordinance to allow busses to operate between here and Haverhill. Alderman J. F. Finnegan favors the change. The matter of allowing busses to operate on various other lines will be taken up at a special meeting of the city council here tomorrow.

PHONE GIRLS IN PARLEY ON PAY

General Manager Driver and Operators Discuss Proposals; $5 Wage Raise Asked

A committee representing nearly 10,000 telephone operators went into conference today with General Manager William R. Driver, representing the New England and Providence telephone companies, to discuss requests for an average increase of $5 and a seven-hour day.

The new schedule was submitted to the committee on Monday by Miss Julia O'Connor, president of the Telephone Operators' Department of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and the committee, if accepted, is to be effective from January 1 next.

Increases sought by the operators range from $4.50 to $5 weekly. Night workers are excepted from the seven-hour day which is now said to be in effect among 50 per cent. of the force. A reduction from five and a half to four years for maximum wage classification is sought for senior operators in Boston and other large New England cities. Regrouping of the various exchanges on wage schedules from six to three divisions is asked, but will not be pressed, it is declared.

NEW AND OLD SCALE.

The new and old schedules are as follows:

Length of Service	Present Wage	Increase
After three months	$12.00	$17.00
After six months	14.00	19.00
After nine months	14.00	20.00
After one year	15.00	21.00
After a year and a half	16.50	23.00
After two years	17.00	24.00
After three years	18.00	25.00
After four years	19.00	27.00
After five years	20.00	...
After five and a half years	22.00	...

An advance of $2 over the salary fixed by length of service is asked for junior supervisors. A request for $21 is made for supervisors, with 50 cents increase each six months and $35 as a maximum. Junior chief operators' wages would be $27 and those of instructors of student operators, $33.50, under the scale asked.

The union asks this scale for operators in exchange classified now as Boston metropolitan, "A-A" and "A." The second proposed reclassification consolidates "B," "C" and "D" exchanges under one wage schedule. The third and lowest scale asked is for "E" and "F" exchanges.

DOUBLE PAY SUNDAY.

The wages proposed for operators in the smaller sized cities under the second wage schedule classification are: Student operator, $17; three months, $18; nine months, $19; one year, $20; a year and a half, $22; two years, $22; three years, $23; four years, $24.

The wages requested for operators in the smallest exchange under the third wage schedule classification are: Student operator, $16; three months, $17; nine months, $18; one year $19; two years, $20; three years, $21; four years, $22.

It is proposed to add $1 a week to the pay of operators working from 5 p. m. to 10 p. m. and $3 a week to the pay of operators working from 10 p. m. or 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. Double pay is requested for all Sunday work. A half day off each week is asked. A full night every two weeks is requested for night operators.

Friendly Black Bear Seen in Brookfield

Brookfield, Dec. 7.—Nimrods from all parts of the State are heading in this direction, in the hope of shooting a black bear which has made its appearance twice in the vicinity of South Pond.

The animal, which seems to be of a friendly disposition, was seen by James Brown, a Worcester salesman, whose business was so urgent he had no time for a close inspection.

SHOTS FIRED AT BURGLARS

Robbers in Roxbury and Watertown Driven Off by Revolver Play

Burglars attempting breaks on Mt Auburn street, Watertown, and Norfolk avenue, Roxbury, were driven off by revolver shots early today.

Two men were surprised shortly after midnight trying to force a rear door of the United Tailors' Association, No. 169 Norfolk avenue, Roxbury. The watchman warned them from an upper window to go away. When they told him to mind his business he fired.

The men dodged around a corner of the building, but showed no intention of leaving. The watchman opened another window, commanding a good view of them, and fired again, whereupon they took to their heels.

Police of the Dudley street station were notified by the watchman and a squad of patrolmen scoured the district for hours, but without result.

The men are described as about twenty-three years old. Both wore dark clothes and caps pulled low on their foreheads.

In Watertown, Patrolman Arthur Perkins discovered a man busily engaged on the cellar window of a residence on Mt. Auburn street.

The burglar took flight. Two shots fired by the officer failed to halt him, and he escaped into a maze of alleys nearby.

MIDDLEBORO HUNTERS DON RED AND GREEN

Middleboro, Dec. 7.—The open season on deer found scores of hunters in the woods in and about Middleboro, and several fine animals were bagged during the day. The first deer reported to have been shot in the district was by H. E. Wright of Plympton shortly after sunrise.

Middleboro hunters are taking no chances on accidents. Several hundreds appeared early with red caps and green jackets to distinguished them from the quarry, and the fact that not an accident was reported in the district vouchsafed for the sanity of the plan.

HUB WOMEN PLAN MacSWINEY FETE

Committees of Irish Orders Will Greet Martyr's Widow on Arrival Here

Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney, widow of Lord Mayor Terence MacSwiney of Cork, who starved himself to death in British prison, London, in protest against British rule in Ireland, will be met by a committee of women representing different Irish and kindred organizations when she arrives in Boston, according to an announcement made today at the quarters of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic at the American House.

A list of the women who will serve on the committee to meet Mrs. MacSwiney is being prepared by John F. Harrigan, president, and Thomas M. Nolan, secretary, and will be made public this week. Mrs. Nora A. Mitchell of No. 17 St. Charles street, Boston, who met Mrs. MacSwiney at the St. Regis, New York, reported to a committee of women that the distinguished visitor will come to Boston following the hearing tomorrow in Washington, D. C.

"I will be very, very happy to come to Boston, and am willing to speak or do anything to further the cause of the recognition of the Irish republic and tell the people what is going on in Ireland," is what Mrs. Mitchell reported Mrs. MacSwiney told her when an invitation was extended to visit Boston.

Miss Julia Walsh, another member of the committee, also stated that Mrs. MacSwiney is anxious to come to Boston, and so reported to a meeting of the Martha Washington Council of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic at the Quincy House. Captain John Kennedy of Brighton, who wore the Sinn Fein uniform and was greeted by Mrs. MacSwiney, returned to Boston with Mrs. Mitchell and Miss Walsh.

The membership drive of the new organization, founded by President De Valera of the Irish Republic, is scheduled to start December 13 and continue until January 15. It is felt that the presence of Mrs. MacSwiney in Boston will give a weighty impetus to the drive.

GREENE TO BACK HARDING ON MARITIME SUBSIDY

Washington, Dec. 7.—If a government subsidy is necessary to make and keep the American merchant marine pre-eminent on the seas, a bill for that purpose will be favored by Representative Greene, of Massachusetts, chairman of the House Merchant Marine committee, said today in President-elect Harding.

This was made plain by Chairman Greene, who said:

"My views are in complete harmony with those of the President-elect and I have no fears of a subsidy if it is needed."

courage wherever feasible to furnish maternity nursing service. To this end the State Department of Public Health should utilize wherever possible such agencies.

"7—For prenatal women who have not sufficient means to pay for their subsistence and the medical care needed at the time of confinement, and to those women who, because of the unfitness of their homes or because of physical complications, need hospital care and yet are unable to pay for it, we believe sufficient aid should be given. At the very least their own and their infants' lives should be safeguarded.

"8—This aid we believe should be given either as it is now by charitable organizations or by the public authorities. We recommend the Department of Public Health and the Department of Public Welfare be specially authorized to co-operate in furnishing aid.

"9—We believe all lying-in hospitals should be under the supervision of the Department of Health, and recommend the responsibility of licensing them be transferred to that department.

"10—For these reasons, instead of endorsing any of the bills submitted for our consideration, we recommend the following legislation:

TEXT OF PROPOSED BILL.

"Section 1—The Department of Public Health is hereby authorized to provide advice, instruction and visiting nursing care to women during their pregnancy and confinement and to mothers and their infants after childbirth, regardless of their financial condition.

"Section 2—Whenever it shall come to the attention of the Department of Public Health that any such woman is in need of aid other than that provided for in Section 1, it may certify the fact, together with recommendations as to the care necessary to the Commissioner of Public Welfare or to the authorities of the city or town in which the mother or infant so certified is found in distress, and thereupon it shall be the duty of the Department of Public Welfare, or the local authorities, as the case may be, to provide such care; and no woman shall be deemed to be a pauper by reason of having received such aid.

"Section 3—No mother or infant shall be eligible to the provisions of Section 2 unless the mother shall at the time of the certification have been a resident of this Commonwealth for a period of six months at least.

"Section 4—The Department of Public Health shall make and may alter, revise or amend all reasonable rules and regulations necessary to the execution of this act, and only they shall be eligible to the provisions of this act unless she shall comply with the same.

"Section 5—The Department of Public Health in the execution of this act may employ nurses on full time or on part time in its discretion and nurses employed on part time shall be exempted from the operation of Civil Service Rules and Regulations.

"Section 6—The said department may take such steps as may be necessary to disseminate information regarding the objects of this act.

"Section 7—For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act there may be expended annually by the Department of Public Health such sums as may be appropriated by the General Court."

HELP GIRLS BY AIDING FAMILY

Miss Wilder, Brookline Policewoman, Has New Method of Guarding Her Charges

"If you want to keep a girl good and happy and wholesome, you've got to help her whole family to be the same."

Such is the belief of Miss Josephine Wilder, Brookline's new policewoman. Miss Wilder, who has just been appointed, has worked with the Brookline Friendly Society for eleven years. Her work, already, has dealt largely with girls.

It is a smiling, fresh faced, good natured, kindly little woman who will help to direct the lives of Brookline's probationed girls after January 1. Miss Wilder explains in her own way what she believes about girls.

"No woman can ever succeed with girls," she says, "unless she ravels up on her side all the moral instincts of girlhood. The young girl is in the period when fun and good clothes mean the most to her.

"The one thing for the policewoman is to see that the girl has a good time in good company. Let her see the difference between happiness with the right kind of people and the wrong. Girlhood is so normal that, nine times out of ten, any girl, having an opportunity for happiness with the right kind of people will hate anything else.

"You have to treat each young girl as a most absorbing individual if you are to help her. The so-called 'case method,' the statistical, arithmetical, gold way of helping a girl will never help her for the world. To help a girl, first be her friend.

"It does no good to help a girl unless you help her family. It's an old story, but basis as love and death and taxes, that your girl living in a four-room tenement, with no parlor is, which to entertain, will probably come into difficulties entertaining on the street corner.

"Therefore, waken up that sleeping father and mother. Make them see that their daughter is a lady and must be given as good a chance as other people's daughters to grow up sweet and wholesome.

"These are the beliefs which I shall try to continue as Brookline's policewoman and probation officer. Long ago all men and women knew that a policewoman, to be the right kind, should not wear a badge. She should not dress up in a uniform, nor patrol the streets nor talk in a loud voice nor, often, make arrests. She should talk in a quiet voice and advise as a good woman, with love and charity and friendliness in her heart. And this is what I will try to do."

FISHERMEN, ADRIFT 3 DAYS, ARE RESCUED

Adrift for three days, without drinking water for more than a day, and their supplies of food nearing exhaustion, was the experience of four Boston fishermen who were brought to port today on the steam steamship Bengalem. The fishing boat was the Antonina, and carried a 50-horsepower gasoline engine. It was stalled northeast of Cape Cod when the engine was disabled. Pietro Pieffetella was the skipper and the other members of the crew were Camello Grillo, Alexander Amato and Nicholas Grillo. They combatted a stiff gale for three days.

YIELDED TO CALL OF THE HEART DESPITE BITTER WARNINGS

The Boston American herewith gives the third chapter of Mrs. Clara Smith Hamon's diary. "In this chapter here reproduced Mrs. Hamon reflects a bitter mental attitude based upon her own "folly" and devotes herself to gloomy introspection and sarcastic retrospection.

MY LOVE

I have sought my love and found it,
Though 'tis not what it had seemed.
And the world is gray and lonely;
Gone the sun that one time beamed.

I have had my life and faltered.
And the world will not condone.
I have tasted wine—so bitter,
And I'm sobered—and alone.

August 30—Alone all day. Fox calls from colonel in Fort Worth—and passing. He came up on 12 o'clock train and went back on the morning train. Good God!

August 31—A very hot day. Colonel left on morning train for Fort Worth. I slept until noon. Spent afternoon sewing and writing. Very quiet day. Extremely lonely in evening. To bed at 9:30. The empty heart.

September 1—Spent morning reading and writing. A fine day to brown around through old papers and books; to live over days gone by and to dream or hope for happy days in the future.

It's a bit of character building—soul development—which we all love. I love the creative work of my own thoughts at times—I love solitude, in which I might look into my own self square in the face without the veneer we so often wear, even before our own souls.

I like to face facts and get away from illusions—I like to look closely upon the stern realities of life and realise what might have been.

That is what this day has been to me, though inclined to be sad, it is satisfying. I must be brave.

Colonel gone to Chicago, I intended going but changed my mind. Save money. Jimmy coming in for a cig-dance tonight.

September 2.—Never in my life have I been more disgusted with myself and with life and with the selfish author of my unhappiness. To accept invitations is to submit myself to torture. I cannot halt for one moment.

My considerations of a life smashed—utterly crushed by circumstances over which I have at this time not the slightest control. Fate has been against me. The inevitable "what must be" overtaken me.

Her Beauty Going Or Gone, She Said

Heart, soul, beauty going or gone and no strength to stop the tide or make a struggle. To be crushed without noise or violence. To be smothered. That is my clearly outlined fate. I cannot do nothing. I myself ordained it through foolish and unmerited love. Lesson, lesson! Are such good are lessons? Who heeds a lesson? I knew all that I now know when I bought my ticket for Post Land. Now I've lived through another lesson. How well I mean more than others did to me, and—puff—I am gone.

It started so simply—the recital of the day's events. My interest, my intelligence and my ability to bridge-flame, which his slower logic halted at, and then love and hell. Jake Leg'le Hamon, "empire builder," and Clara Hamon, his court fool, grimacing under the weight of a broken life.

Sempteмber 4.—Heard a lecture which seemed to be a repeat of the slow. It is the first thing which I have listened attentively to in months, it seems, but every word seemed so fitting to me that I was absorbed.

And so I learn that no one but hermits and saints need put store upon subduing the flesh through they think, becomes useless. Strange philosophy and calculated to cheer me up. Which I do not do at all.

I am to believe that a man can only lead me when he remains a man with a man's passions so that he will not fight this love with all of strength. I heard it all and I doubt it all. It seems that man have a million defenders. They defend themselves, no matter what their own action, all men artistically defend other men and women, either happy or comfortable, defend their individual men while there is a face of reason in so doing. And after the truce of reason has vanished, But women—they look out for themselves—when they know enough to do it. And they're there some when their defense is too strong and they're smashed when their defense is weak.

It was almost too much of the lecturer to admit that even these men who must give vent to their passions should be so salty the wrong thing. It must have been an afterthought.

I Cannot Regulate My Actions at All

September 5.—Another day which means nothing to me. I cannot control my depression. I cannot regulate my actions at all. Am a living atom of misery and for what? For nothing; and I know it. One may see a star and long to draw near it, though one knows it is always beyond reach, unattainable. You may stumble forward to your ruin, led by its light.

There is no logical way to reasoning upon anything which is based originally upon irrisistible impulse. I made no effort to be little my risk. I assumed it. The worst has resulted. So perhaps I am, to that extent, did not follow the course which intelligence directed and now I suffer for it. I have failed to employ it. I determined, against all the advice which one gets from reading, or the slights of others that I would go on and try to win happiness by a receipt which has always failed before. My case, I find, is no exception.

I sit writing while the fading leaves rustle ceaselessly. Their restless movement is in keeping with the thoughts and emotions mingled with other and denser emotions. Why square my shoulders? The fates are against me. I succumbs to the strong heart.

September 6—Left Santa Fe train at Fort Worth for Ardmore. Took bad cold. Arrived at Ardmore 1a4e.

Phoned colonel to eat lunch with me, but as usual he was too busy. Always finds excuses. Always he puts me off.

Has given me little attention and when with me, is cold and indifferent. He doesn't seem to be in his right mind.

He appears to be in a sort of trance. He is so unnatural. Never saw him quite like this. He seems to have lost his balance, even in all things.

Hopes to Make "Jack" a Man of Kindness

November 12—Children came in on train to see me. Did a little shopping for them. They are so sweet and good and I love them profoundly. It grieves me to think of my own—but I am to go to California. Baby Jack is my wonderful "Dream Baby."

Oh, that I might have him as I long to, my very own—but again fate is unkind to me. If, when Baby Jack is old enough to realize the truth—the turmoil and strife of my life has ended, and I can help to make of him a fine man—then I will not have lived in vain. I want to see him that most wonderful thing—a man with kindness in his heart.

November 13—Arose early with full intention of going to church, but felt too tired and nervous. Had brisk walk to get fresh air. The colonel neglected me dreadfully. He chased around all over town to amuse himself, but seemed to forget I was alone and lonely, aside from being really sick. I am miserably unhappy.

Spent most of the time walking the floor, hoping against hope that he will soon come to give me a little of his time—or, perhaps—a little comfort and cheer. Late in the evening he comes to announce that he is going to a big duck dinner, where he gets awfully drunk. He is all that my Jack will not be.

November 15—Got awake real early. Had time after breakfast to read. Heart just hurt. I am walked on and wonder at my patience. All my dignity lost and hate is kept within myself. I cannot speak. Hate myself and on. Where? How hopeless—how sickened I am. Through the whole night I am wakeful. Colonel ill. How well I know the truth of that saying.

"You can't get away with it! Can't."

Leading Figures in Bitter Love Tragedy

Mrs. Jake L. Hamon, widow of slain Oklahoma millionaire, who displayed little interest in the hunt for her husband's slayer.

Mrs. Clara Smith Hamon, talented secretary of the slain financier, who admits she killed him because he cast her off after a relationship of ten years.

CLARA HAMON CONFESSES

accidentally overheard a conversation between two oil men discussing the case Saturday night in the lobby of the Gunter Hotel. One of the men, a driller named Lawrence Tillman, said to Jamison:

"Clara is still here. She is hanging around in the hopes that she may be able to charter an airplane and cross into Mexico."

Growing for words, Mrs. Hamon in the midst of a scathing denunciation of Hamon, exclaimed vehemently:

"I killed him."

"He ruined my life and our son, Jack. I killed him for Jack's sake. He fooled me. He got all I had, forcing me to marry his nephew from whom I was divorced upon the latter's petition, a short time before.

"Are you ready to face a judge and jury and tell them what you have told me and admit you killed Hamon?" she was asked.

She whispered back, hardly audible: "I am ready to face a judge, but he must be just. I am ready to face a jury, but they must be women. If I am given assurance that a just judge will hear my case, I will voluntarily surrender."

While in a dry goods store yesterday afternoon the correspondent recognized Mrs. Hamon, and was in turn recognized by the woman, who became excited and made a rush to a high-power roadster waiting outside. She sped west, heading towards the Somerset road.

The correspondent secured another car and gave chase, following westward over ten miles over one of the roughest roads in this part of the country. At last the roadster was sighted. It was stalled. Both the front tires were flat.

"I KILLED HIM."

The newspaper man succeeded in getting two tires from a passing car and fixed Mrs. Hamon's machine. Then he took the wheel for her.

On the lonely road to a ranch house she unfolded her story, between sobs.

"I, a woman of destiny, who willingly walked into a human pirate's web, and when it was too late o withdrew, pierced his heart with a shot. I am willing to face my maker and let him be the judge after eternity has called me from this sphere of make believe.

"If twelve mothers find me guilty and the Colonel free from guilt, I am willing to die a martyr for coming generations of my sex to profit by my experience and as a warning to other girls never to take a man's word as its face value.

"I have known Jake Hamon since I was seventeen," she went on. "I was his stenographer and no employer was more respectable and kind than he. I was young, beautiful and romantic and his golden tales of life-to-be were tempting. At last I fell.

"It happened in the Hotel Ardmore. After hours of love telling, wonderful castle building and the thoughts of a happy married life we left the hotel for a 'joy ride' that will forever last in my memory as the most beautiful hour of our companionship.

DREADS FINGER OF SCORN.

"We were so happy then, but alas time has passed through the hour glass of despair, and now I am a broken thing. Still deep in my own heart I hear an uttering which says: 'You were mistaken but not to blame.'

"In spite of this internal saying, I can see the public pointing their finger of scorn at me, denouncing me as unfit to mingle in society. Oh, God, equal rights for women. What mockery! The mockery of suffrage rings in my ears as a trumpet calling the worn shreds of my body to revive and renerve my soul, which has been tarnished by a rich man's passion.

"He professed love for me and treated me as a sweetheart until I allowed his attentions to reach the climax for which he planned for years. When the baby came, instead of making the colonel more kind and loving, Jackie, dear, seemed to present a chasm which could not be bridged." Here she broke down and wept.

Hamon Letters Are Seized in Chicago

By International News Service.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—Four trunks thought by the police to have been employed by powerful interests seeking to suppress details of the mysterious shooting of Ardmore, Okla., of Jake L. Hamon, are being sought today for theft of 75 letters from the apartment of Mrs. Hamon, the widow, at No. 4901 Sheridan road.

The letters were taken from the apartment of Charles Willis, the landlord, which adjoins that of Mrs. Hamon. Willis was keeping the letters until Mrs. Hamon's return from Oklahoma.

When the four men appeared at the apartment and demanded the letters Willis refused to give them up. Two men seized and held him while the other two ransacked the apartment, finally discovering the letters in a small cabinet.

Clara Hamon Cannot Be Tried by Her Sex

By International News Service.

Ardmore, Okla., Dec. 7.—Existing laws of the State of Oklahoma will prevent a trial by twelve women jurors of Mrs. Clara Smith Hamon, alleged slayer of Jake L. Hamon, millionaire Oklahoma "oil king," according to County Attorney Russell P. Brown today. Brown said he "would be glad to try Mrs. Clara Hamon before twelve women, but that the State laws interfered.

Attorney Brown has wired San Antonio police to "use every known agency to apprehend Mrs. Hamon and to arrest the newspaper correspondent who found her. If necessary, to arrest the correspondent to compel her delivery.

"The attorney-general of Oklahoma recently ruled that a special act of the Oklahoma Legislature would be necessary before women could serve on juries," said Brown.

Asked why he thought Mrs. Hamon wanted women, the county attorney said it was "for the ready play for sympathy she would find."

"Mrs. Clara Hamon spent the morning after the shooting with Hamon at the hospital," said Brown. "They talked for quite a while and then Mrs. Hamon left. Directly afterwards she began her flight for the Mexican border."

LAY KEEL OF NOVA SCOTIA CHALLENGER

Lunenburg, N. S., Dec. 7.—The keel for a new schooner to compete for the silver trophy in the International fishermen's races, which is now held by the Esperanto of Gloucester, has been laid here and construction of the vessel will be rushed so that she may make a trip to the Banks and qualify for the races next Fall.

She will have 119 feet waterline, with some alterations from the usual Nova Scotian type. Shares subscribed for by Halifax and Lunenburg citizens will meet the cost of construction.

'RICH' HUSBAND BEGS BY DAY

Wife, in Suit for Annulment, Claims Alleged Millionaire's Son Is Street Vagrant

San Francisco, Dec. 7.—In a suit for annulment of marriage, filed by Mrs. Lillian Geraldine Van D'Loye against James Robert Van D'Loye, it has been disclosed that the defendant who posed as the son of a New York millionaire, was in reality a beggar, who sought alms during the day as a decoy mate and played the part of a rich man at night.

The plaintiff, who was a Miss Leitch of Virginia, came to California last September. According to her story she was seventeen. She met Van D'Loye and he invited her to dinner. He talked, she says, of his wealthy father who gave him an income of $100 a week. He proposed and she accepted him in Redwood City.

In her complaint the wife says she soon discovered her bigamist was a fraud. He says his true name is J. Leslie Sheldon and that by means of forged certificate of birth he is also a dumb he has been "working" the unwary on the plea that he was trying to raise funds to get back to his old home in Topeka.

After she had filed her suit for annulment of the marriage Mrs. D'Loye asked the police for a warrant for her husband's arrest on a charge of burglary. She says he broke into her room at a hotel and stole a camera and other personable articles. Van D'Loye has disappeared.

The wife says she discovered she had been deceived when she found cards in her husband's pockets reading, "I am deaf and dumb. Alms, per pity's sake, kind." But this she did not until after her husband had borrowed all her money. She left him and refused to see him, but once he climbed the fire escape to the window of her room to plead with her to take him back, she declares.

FATAL LIFT ACCIDENT TO BOY INVESTIGATED

Following the fatal accident to Albert De Lorey, eleven years old, who was killed last Saturday when he fell from a freight elevator at No. 24 Huntington avenue, the Department of Labor and Industries Division of Industrial Safety issued a statement saying that the division investigates all serious accidents to children under sixteen years of age. It declares that if the boy, who was assisting his father in delivering milk, had been employed in connection with a mercantile establishment he would have been illegally employed. According to Director Mealey the department has been investigating the employment of minors on milk wagons and prosecutions have recently followed where it was found that children under fourteen years of age were employed before 6:30 in the morning.

To Stop Liquor Sales on All U. S. Ships

By International News Service.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Revenue Commissioner Williams is drafting a prohibition order prohibiting the sale of liquors on all American ships, wherever they may be, it was announced at the revenue commissioner's office today.

The proposed ruling is based on an opinion submitted by Solicitor General Peterson, which holds that American prohibition laws apply to all on board American ships whatever the ships may be.

Since the passage of the prohibition laws American ships have sold liquor outside the three-mile limit.

Commissioner Williams announced he would not make the ruling public until it is finally promulgated.

LOVE DIARY IS READ IN COURT

Letters of Worcester Father of Seven Children to Girl Part of Evidence

Worcester, Dec. 7.—Beautiful Louise Swanson's love diary, revealing devotion to Allison M. Coon, the middle-aged Main street credit clothing dealer to whom she poetically referred as "Little Boy Blue," was read in all its revealing detail before a curious crowd in court here.

Miss Swanson, who left a bookkeeper's desk to seek "life" as an artist's model, motion picture actress and music hall favorite, is named by Mrs. Coon in her suit for separate maintenance.

Coon, hero of the beauty's ardent dreams, is the father of seven children.

Miss Swanson is the sister of Marcella and Beatrice Swanson, two of the girls who figured in the revival of "Florodora."

She was employed as Coon's bookkeeper when romance developed, according to Charles E. Murphy, attorney for the wife. Coon admitted that he had written impassioned love letters to her, but said he burned them another day.

He denied that he paid for an apartment for her in New York that she had visited for a week on several days at a time, that they had a "honeymoon" at the Hotel Somerset, and that he took her on a Western trip.

The unhappy husband told Judge Fortes he made a mistake and wished to rectify it and return to his wife. Mrs. Coon, in a written statement enclosure, shook her head in a decided negative.

Mrs. Coon's decision not to return to her husband was reached after she had listened intently to the reading of "Little Boy Blue" letters and affectionate passages from Miss Swanson's diary.

Excerpts from Coon's love letters show he charged Miss Swanson with coldness and avoidance after engaging an apartment from him only he would not occupy. She admitted having left her "stranded" in New York.

"I remember the old saying about never loving a married woman," Coon ran one epistle. "My ambition is for you. What about yours? You appeared before a public that never asks for you. To receive its cheap applause. To listen to the coarse jests of men who loves you. Oh, darling, can't you see you are making a terrible mistake?"

"I fully realize you stayed in our rooms in New York only until you could get your money, for you cannot deceive love. Is it honorable for you? Can you see me suffer as you do, in the eyes of God?"

SCHOOLS AIDING FUND.

Among the numerous schools that are assisting in the Boston tag day is the Helene Sweney School of Dancing. Mrs. Sweney has kindly donated the time of her young women instructors as tag sellers on both days. These girls are the Misses Ruth Foster, Betty Walsh, Jeanette Sylva and Anne Starrett. Mrs. Sweney has a flourishing dancing academy on Massachusetts avenue, and is always willing to assist in aiding a good cause. In addition to giving the services of her instructors she also has contributed directly to the fund.

Young women who are to assist on tag days are: Mrs. F. M. Woods, Mrs. G. Keating, Miss Marie Bemster, Miss Dorothy Mailman, Miss Elise McElhiney, Miss Harriett Krefschman, Miss Madelin A. Hart, Miss Lillian Sacco, Miss Esther Goodman, Miss Mae Gorman, Mrs. M. F. Berry, Mrs. G. Sullivan, Miss Mildred Carey, Miss Margaret Shallow and Mrs. Louise M. Solomon.

Another young woman who has again offered her services is Miss Ruth Goodman, who had the honor during last years' tag-day of collecting the largest sum of money of the 225 girls who assisted. Miss Goodman is an unusually energetic girl, and says she is always glad to help when her efforts mean food for needy children.

Tickets for the charity ball and entertainment at the Copley-Plaza Hotel ballroom Tuesday evening, December 21, under the auspices of the Amelia Burnham Studio of Dancing, have been placed on sale at the studio, No. 240 Huntington avenue, and also at the Personal Service Bureau at Filene's store, and the ticket office at Hiller's Pharmacy, No. 1215 Commonwealth avenue.

Pretty Xmas Fund Workers

resentative Theodore Glynn of Roxbury, members of Division No. 17, A. O. H., and Galway Men's Benevolent Association, contributed $10 each to the fund, and the football team of the latter organization agreed to donate later.

"Our organization appreciates the good work the Hearst papers have and are doing for the cause of humanity," wrote President John Hastings of the Mayo Men's Association.

If You Keep Hens CUT THIS OUT

1,000 Eggs in Every Hen—Four to Seven Eggs a Week per Hen Through Cold Winter Season. With Eggs at Dollar a Dozen. Means $5.00 Profit per Hen in Next Six Months. Amazing Poultry Secrets Revealed By AMERICA'S FOREMOST POULTRY EXPERT

This is an offer no reader of this paper who keeps chickens can afford to ignore. We will tell you why.

Henry Trafford, Famous Poultry Expert and Breeder, for nearly eighteen years Editor of "Poultry Success," has developed a new and remarkable system of rearing, breeding and feeding chickens for heavy egg production that seems certain to revolutionize the poultry industry and give five eggs or more for every egg produced today. This plan or system is explained in Mr. Trafford's "1,000 Egg Hen" a free copy of which will be sent to any person who keeps six hens or more.

Poultry keepers, following Mr. Trafford's directions, learn how to start young pullets laying early; make old hens moult quickly and resume heavy laying during entire Winter season. Most any hen will lay in Spring when eggs are cheap. Mr. Trafford tells how hens lay four to seven eggs a week during coldest Winter days when eggs sell at a dollar a dozen or more. His system shows how any breeder, with ordinary care, may get 1,000 eggs or more from nearly every hen in five years' time at a net profit of $25.00.

There is big money to be made with chickens this Winter by the man or woman who gets the eggs. The time to get the hens ready for heavy Winter laying is now. Mr. Trafford's "1,000 Egg Hen" system tells how and arrangements have been made whereby any reader of this paper may receive one copy absolutely free by using the Coupon below. Send no money, but cut out the Coupon and mail it with your name and address to Henry Trafford, 912R Tyne Bldg., Binghamton, N. Y., and the story of the 1,000 Egg Hen will be sent you by return mail.

Why Teeth Glisten

after dental cleaning—Why they soon grow dim

Your teeth glisten for awhile after a dental cleaning. Then they soon grow dim.

The reason lies in film. That is what makes teeth dingy. Your dentist removes it, but your tooth brush leaves much of it intact.

Now there's a way to daily combat film. Millions of people employ it. Shining teeth seen everywhere show how much it means. This is to urge that you try it and see what it means to you.

You must fight film

That viscous coat you feel on teeth is film. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. The tooth brush does not end it used in ordinary ways. So, in the months between your dental cleanings, it may do ceaseless damage.

It more than dims teeth—it destroys them. Most tooth troubles are now traced to film. And, despite the tooth brush, those tooth troubles have been constantly increasing.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. And that is alarmingly common.

Science finds ways

Dental science has for years sought ways to fight that film. Proper tooth protection was impossible without it. This world-wide research has resulted in efficient methods, now at your command.

Years of careful tests have proved them. Authorities endorse them. Leading dentists everywhere advise them.

The methods are combined now in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. Millions already employ it, largely by dental advice. To those who do not know it yet we send a test tube free.

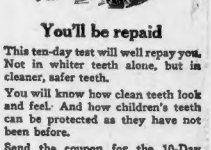
See and feel it act

One needs no scientific knowledge to realize Pepsodent effects. The results are quick and apparent. Every application repeats the benefits it brings.

One ingredient is pepsin. Another multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. The alkalinity of the saliva is multiplied also, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Two factors directly attack the film. One of them keeps the teeth so highly polished that film cannot easily adhere.

The film-coats are day-by-day fought as they never were before.



You'll be repaid

This ten-day test will well repay you. Not in whiter teeth alone, but in cleaner, safer teeth.

You will know how clean teeth look and feel. And how children's teeth can be protected as they have not been before.

Send the coupon for the 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Watch the several effects from every application. The book we send will tell the reasons for them. You will quickly know that Pepsodent brings a new era in teeth cleaning. Cut out the coupon now.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign you have been eating too much meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.—Advertisement.

THE DEAF HEAR

Arthur McLeod, 15 Pacific St., Lynn, Mass., says: "I had been deaf for fifteen years, so deaf at times that it was scarcely anything. At all times it was difficult for me to hear unless I sat close against my ear, even when normal close against my ear, and ordinary conversation was well nigh impossible. I had noises in my ears like the sound of falling water, and there was a discharge from my ear, but that was decidedly unpleasant. I had been treated years ago for my trouble but with such indifferent success I discontinued treatment until a short time ago I read of the marvelous success of the Camo Home Physician. I sent for a treatment of the hopelessly deaf that I had seen, and the success was equally duplicated in my own case, for now I can hear again, and the noises and discharge are gone."

The wonderful power of the X-RAY TREATMENT is proved by the fact that they are according wonderful results in disease of every description—CATARRH, DEAFNESS, BRONCHITIS, STOMACH DISEASE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, SKIN DISEASES, BIRTH-MARKS, MOLES, FACIAL BLEMISHES, ETC.

PONZI'S DUPES TO GET THIRD

Appraisers Find His Assets Are $1,592,209.12; Hanover Trust Checks Omitted

Creditors of Charles Ponzi will receive approximately 33 cents on every dollar they invested with the Securities Exchange Company, according to the statements issued by the auditors handling the tangled affairs of the former promoter.

The total of all Ponzi's assets is given by the appraisers as $1,592,209.12 which, compared with the auditors' incomplete statement of his liabilities, $4,264,000, provides for the return to investors of about $1 on every $3 invested, or 33 cents on the dollar.

The auditors base Ponzi's liabilities on the money actually paid in by the thousands of investors. The face value of the notes (which includes the 50 per cent. interest) is given as $6,896,000.

COLLECTED MANY TIMES.

His declared liabilities, however, do not include the amount of the outstanding checks on the Hanover Trust Company, which the auditors have not yet had an opportunity to examine. The auditors declare that their findings on the value of the outstanding notes is incomplete because Ponzi failed to establish a regular system of bookkeeping.

Many of the notes, it is disclosed, were no longer in the possession of the original owners, and many had been collected many times.

Charles R. Bacon, Abraham K. Cohen and John F. Moore were the appraisers.

They estimate the value of Ponzi's Lexington estate (subject to be diminished by value of wife's dower) at $21,000. The equity in real estate at No. 19 Hilton street, Boston, is estimated at $500, while household furniture and furnishings are a value of $12,800.

The value of certificates of deposit with the Hanover Trust Company, which aggregated $1,658,221.83, is determined to be $743,665.45. In box 1142 of the branch of the Hanover Trust Company were $11,230 in bills and $497.50 in gold.

DANIELS MONEY $54,000.

The claim arising out of the Daniels transaction is placed at $54,000, while that of the Casullo transactions relative to a house in Winthrop Highlands is valued at $7,000. The value of four mortgage notes secured by real estate is placed at $46,125.

Another asset is the note of August Johnson for $3,000 and valued at the same figure. A loan to Ettore Forte has a value of $87,500, while that made to Mario Grazio Bianco of $6,500 is valued at $3,500.

Checks of twenty-two banks, most of which are in Massachusetts, have a total value of $53,511.08. There is a bank deposit of 161,400 lire in the Banca Commerciale Italiana, Naples, which is valued at $7,542.97, and which, when added to other bank deposits, makes a total of $15,632.50.

Ponzi's limousine is valued at $7,000. Postage and revenue stamps contribute $61.33 to the assets and office furniture is worth $200. The accrued interest on mortgages is $284.69. Since the receivers took charge on August 20, 1920, there have been $85,397 in lawyers' fees returned. Commissions and donations returned since that time have totalled $10,781.28, while the profits returned are $787.50.

75 P. C. OF FACE VALUE.

The deposit in the Hanover Trust Company of the face value of $33,000 in the name of Dondero, Mahoney and Wilson, transferred by order of the court to the receivers, subject to be decreased by such equitable rights therein as may be established, has been appraised at 75 per cent. of the face value, or $24,750. The return premium on a fire insurance policy with the Niagara Fire Insurance Company was $2253. The only remaining asset is that of the claim to moneys and notes in the possession of the commissioner of banks, the value of which is uncertain.

BELMONT CLUB HONORS COOLIDGE AND COX

Vice-President-elect Calvin Coolidge and Governor-elect Channing H. Cox were given a complimentary dinner at the clubhouse by members of the Belmont Springs Country Club. The wives of the guests were also honored at the reception which preceded the dinner. Bowen Tufts, president of the club, presided. Edward C. Stone was toastmaster. The guests, both of whom are members of the club, spoke briefly. J. R. Clark responded for the club.

WAGES CUT AND FORCE REDUCED IN LYNN

One Lynn company has announced a cut in wages and another concern laid off a large force of workers. The Benx Kid Company announced a cut of 20 per cent. in wages to take effect when business returns and the shop is opened to its 200 hands. Thomas A. Kelley & Co., the largest morocco manufacturers of Lynn, discharged a large number of workers because of lack of business.

RAIDERS FIND LIQUOR IN HOTEL MARLIAVE

Federal officers raided the Hotel Mariave, Haworth and Bromfield streets, and seized a gallon of colored alcohol, a quantity of creme de menthe, three bottles of sweet wine, 45 per cent. of alcohol and a lot of assorted liquours. Isaac Bernstein, the proprietor, was not on the premises, but a warrant has been issued for his arrest.

NOTED JEWS TO SPEAK TONIGHT

Back Bay Meeting to Be Held in Connection With National Religious Campaign

In connection with the national movement to deepen the religious interest of Jews and extend the influence of Judaism, a meeting will be held this evening in the Temple Israel, Back Bay, at which Daniel F. Hart of New York, Dr. Nathan Krass of New York, Rabbi Samuel Abrams of this city and Mrs. Abraham L. Fishe of the Temple Israel, will speak.

The majority of the speakers are members of the movement's "flying squadron of laymen," composed of 100 of the nation's most prominent Jews, who have been touring the the country, addressing meetings in all Jewish communities. Felix Vorenberg, A. C. Ratshesky and Louis E. Kirstein are included in the unit.

The meetings have been arranged by the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, with headquarters in Cincinnati. The union supports the Hebrew Union College; a school at Washington and extension work. In connection with the union's drive for funds, the committee raising Boston's quota has reached its goal and their report will be rendered at tonight's meeting.

Manny Strauss of New York, organizing genius of the movement, and other speakers at tonight's meeting arrived in this city today, and were entertained this afternoon at a dinner by representatives of the Union Park Street Temple and Temple Israel.

Doctors Stand Amazed at Power of Bon-Opto to Make Weak Eyes Strong—According to Dr. Lewis

Guarantee to Strengthen Eyesight 50% in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa. Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by their own reading at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for 15 days everything is perfectly clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overwork. Tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me!"

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now throw them away in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of this prescription. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Dron one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Bon-Opto is sold by druggists under the above guarantee. It is not a patent medicine nor a secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is sold in Boston and vicinity by the leading druggists.—Advertisement.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—Delightful entertainment is being offered the initial half of this week at Loew's Orpheum Theatre in the form of exclusive vaudeville offerings and photoplay features. Morey, Senna and Dean offer melodies, music and smiles; William E. Morris and company present a satirical one-act comedy, "Did You Vote?" George L. Spaulding and Elia Clay, Melville and Stetson, Jrs. scored a hit in their novel bits. Other offerings included Shilah Pearl, songs and sayings; Play and Castleton, singing and dancing novelties, and Harry La Toy, promoter of laughs.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immediate, effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 10c and 30c.

CARILLO IS HEADLINER AT KEITH'S

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Leo Carillo, late star of "Lombardi, Ltd.," is headlining at Keith's this week. Before he made his successes in "Twin Beds," "Upstairs and Down" and "Lombardi" Carillo was a vaudeville favorite, and he is back at the old game while waiting for a new play.

Carillo dresses like a boulevardier and wears no make-up. He recites some doggerel about now pleased he is to be present and what bad jokes he proposes to tell, but he doesn't tell many bad ones and lots of good ones. His Chinese dialect couldn't be beaten by a Chinaman—or understood either, probably, but it is funny. His Italian accent convulsed them but when he uses the dialect of a Ford automobile engine they like it best. Carillo can make queerer noises with his throat than anybody of the grand opera stage.

The Cansinos are also on the bill. These Spanish dancers, a man and woman, made a sensation in New York during the past season. They are graceful and agile and they show us some Spanish dances we never saw.

Patricolo, a clown, who is assisted by a ballet dancer named Irene Delroy, has a clever, amusing act. Miss Delroy is a little beauty and a topnotch toe dancer, but Patricolo is very rough to her. The S. P. C. A. should prevent him from slapping her on the derriere back the way he does. Not even a husband is justified in behaving like that. However, the people out front thought the team was a riot.

Coming Events

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—Next week at the Boston Opera House the Royal English Opera Company will be heard in Planquette's memorable "The Chimes of Normandy," in which the full strength of this distinguished organization will appear to exceptional advantage. Jefferson De Angelis, as the Miser, and Edith Bennett, as Germaine, are specially well cast.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—The very interesting announcement is made that the attraction at the Plymouth Theatre for two weeks, beginning Monday evening next, will be "Pagan," a modern play by Charles Anthony, with those three well-known stars, Irene Fenwick, Hedio Ware and Joseph Shildkraut in the leading roles and a brilliant supporting cast.

ARLINGTON THEATRE — "June Love" terminated its engagement at the Arlington Theatre last Saturday night and the opening attraction at this house Monday, December 20, will be Walter Hampden, who is referred to as the "greatest living Hamlet."

Italian Symphony Concert

The first of a series of Sunday night concerts to be given by the celebrated Italian Symphony Orchestra at Symphony Hall, under the guidance of Signor Raffaele Martino, will be given next Sunday evening. Signor Martino has made special arrangements to make these concerts of much interest and delight to the music-loving public of Boston.

MALDEN AUDITORIUM—That jolliest of farces, "Charley's Aunt," was presented by the Temple Stock Company at the Malden Auditorium yesterday. Not a whit of its remarkable power as a fun-maker, which it has enjoyed now for longer than almost any other farce one could name, appears to be lost, if the hilarious pleasure of yesterday's audience is any token.

"GONDOLIERS" IS WELL SUNG

An excellent performance of "The Gondoliers" was given at the Boston Opera House by the Royal English Opera company. Max Bendix conducted.

Jefferson De Angelis, as the Inquisitor, was agile and amusing and received several encores, while Mildred Rogers, as the Duchess of Plaza-toro, both sang and acted her role well. She had one solo in the last act which well suited her strong, smooth voice.

Ralph Brainard and Edward Quinn, the gondoliers, who have temporary joint occupancy of the throne of Barataria, sang pleasingly, and Eunice Gilman and Edith Bennin, their wives, and expectant queens, scored.

The opera will be repeated tonight and tomorrow night, and the "Pirates of Penzance" will be the attraction for the remainder of the week.

PARK THEATRE—Louise Glaum in "Love," is the feature at the Park Theatre all th's week in J. Parker Read, Jr.'s, second vehicle for Associated Producers. "Love" as a lasting bond between man and woman which nothing may sever, is the theme. James Kirkwood supports the star. "The Marriage Pit," with Frank Mayo, is the other feature.

GORDON'S OLD SOUTH—Once more Charles Ray has demonstrated in the delineation of so-called rube characters he is by far the peer of all motion picture stars. He is seen in "Peaceful Valley."

Other Theatres

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—Cecil B. DeMille has departed from his usual society background for his plot in "Something to Think About" and though the picture unfolds a virile story of plain folks in the country instead of a sophisticated drama of married life, it is characterized with the same artistry and care of production that is expected in a DeMille photoplay.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA — D. W. Griffith's "The Love Flower" is playing at Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia Theatre, where it began an extended engagement last night.

WALDRON'S CASINO—Many times has the remark been made when things theatrical were being discussed, "Oh! Burlesque shows are all alike, if you see one, you see them all." No doubt Max Spiegel has often heard this remark and perhaps that is one of the reasons, when he became a producer, that he set about to prove that that is a wrong impression. Max Spiegel has always been ready to spend money to make his shows more pleasing to the eye and therefore more attractive to the ladies. His shows have always been noted for magnificence of the costumes and scenery and for the beauty of the chorus.

CENTRAL SQ. THEATRE—Pauline Frederick, in "Madame X," was shown last evening at Gordon's Cambridge Central Square Theatre. The entire play is filled with dramatic situations that call for the best that an actress can give.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE—"Nightie Night," that delightfully racy and intimate comedy which set New York and Boston agog with laughter, was presented yesterday for the first time in Somerville, by the capable Somerville Players, under the direction of Director Kendall Weston.

SHOULD SANTA CLAUS BE EXILED?

ENEMIES "GETTING OLD."

Santa Claus Editor:

In regards to the two Boston professors' talk on Santa Claus, I would like to express my opinion. People of today have had enough misery without going around at Christmas with a long face. I think it is right that we should all be happy and cheerful on the day Christ was born instead of talking of war and other sins.

I would like to ask the worthy professors if they ever enjoyed Christmas day. Just because they are getting old they would like to take the joy from the younger generation. We know there is a lot of suffering right here at home. But will it help the sufferer any for us to sit down and talk about war and the sins of the world? I should say not.

Let the children enjoy themselves while they may. Life is too short as it is without thinking of trouble all the time. I can't say as much as I would like to, for I respect old age.

A MOTHER OF THREE.

Lynn.

WOULD EXILE PROFESSORS.

Santa Claus Editor:

As a constant reader of the greatest newspaper of the day, the American, I think the two learned doctors, Smith and Beebe, should be exiled until after Christmas, instead of Santa Claus, for I believe there would be no real Christmas for the kiddies without the good old Saint.

I am the mother of a little one three years old and I surely have taught her that Santa Claus will bring her many things this year, and her papa and mama also, and her little sister in Heaven. She never wishes for a plaything without first wishing the same for her sister—so does that breed selfishness?

Life is so short for us all and our little ones grow up into men and women and all too soon learn the sorrows and serious things of life, so let them live and drink in all of our good fairy tales while they are children.

A FRIEND OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN.

Bridgewater.

NO SANTA—NO XMAS.

Santa Claus Editor:

I certainly do not believe in exiling old Santa Claus from the children's Christmas. Why? Just imagine what Christmas would be to them without a "Santa" to make it bright. To them it is the dearest feature of Christmas, and helps to make their Christmas bright and cheery.

After all, they learn enough of the serious things in life as they grow older, and their childhood should not be filled with grim stories of war and such things, as the "learned professors believe," but with things which make them happy.

They're old soon enough without any help on the part of their parents.

Our grandfathers and great-grandfathers for years back kept the tradition of Santa, and no harm ever came of it.

Christmas would certainly not be a success without Kris Kringle and his reindeer.

"I Never Knew Mayonnaise was so Easy to Make—and the Cost so Little"

Of Special Interest to Women who Eat Mayonnaise Only in Restaurants

ALMOST anybody can cook a steak, but the preparation of an appetizing salad dressing is considered a real accomplishment. Even men pride themselves in their skill in making salad dressings.

Have You, Too, Hesitated To Make This Delicious Salad Dressing At Home?

Yet some of the finest Mayonnaise, as well as Hollandaise, Russian Dressing and Vinaigrette Sauce—have been made by girls who never "tried their hands" at a salad dressing before.

They just followed the recipe and used Mazola—with results that are a constant source of delight. Try this one yourself and see how simple it is.

Just take the

Yolks of 2 eggs	One Teaspoonful salt
Two cups Mazola	One Teaspoonful Mustard
Two Tablespoonsful vinegar	Dash Cayenne
Juice of one lemon

Have all ingredients very cold. Mix the seasoning, and add to the beaten yolks of the eggs. Beat with a small wooden spoon or silver fork. Add the oil drop by drop, beating vigorously. When too thick to beat add one teaspoonful vinegar. Continue to add the oil slowly, alternating with the vinegar and lemon juice, until at least a half a cup of oil has been added. After half a cup of oil has been added, slowly, the dressing may be beaten with a Dover Egg Beater and the oil added more rapidly.

You will be delighted with this zestful Mayonnaise that brings out and enriches the fine taste of the meat, fish, shellfish or salad.

Nothing Added to Bring Out The Delicate Taste

Mazola is an absolutely pure vegetable oil—in its rich, natural state. Many people prefer it even to the finest Italian olive oil—as it blends more perfectly with other ingredients than olive oil does. It makes a smoother, finer dressing than any other oil, as many chefs of the most prominent American hotels are finding out.

The oil being so completely and thoroughly blended with the spices and condiments entering into the dressing, the real taste of the Mayonnaise is brought out.

Mazola-made Mayonnaise keeps longer without separating than olive oil or other oils.

Fruit salads, made with Mazola Mayonnaise, have a distinctive taste. And vegetable and other salads—as well as beets, cold slaw, and cold vegetables, served with Mazola Mayonnaise, are more appetizing and satisfying.

Unusual Economy — No Customs Duty, No Ocean Freight Rates

Mazola is more economical than olive oil. It costs only about half as much. As it keeps indefinitely, it can be used to the very last drop.

Mazola is served by leading clubs, hotels, and dining cars throughout America—and sold by leading grocers everywhere, in pint, quart, half-gallon and gallon cans.

CITY LAND IS DENIED 'L'

Protests Move Council to Refuse Easement at Forest Hills Station

Yielding to sectional feeling against granting the Boston Elevated an easement on city land to extend its sacks and storage space from Forest Hills station, the City Council turned down the road by a 5 to 4 vote, with Councillor Daniel W. Lane, recently adorned for re-election by the Good Government Association, voting with the majority.

Councillor Lane's action surprised his colleagues who looked for him to vote for the measure as a public improvement in the interests of the car riders. Lane explained that the opposition in Forest Hills to the project was so great that he felt justified in reversing his vote of a previous meeting.

TO FORCE CUT IN CLOTHING TRADE

Employers in New York Determined to Compel Unions to Accept

By International News Service.

New York, Dec. 7.—Peace or war in the clothing industry of New York hinged today on whether the clothing manufacturers would put into force their ultimatum for piece work, reduction in wages and re-establishment of the right to "hire and fire," which has been rejected by the unionized employes.

War was expected, although during the next several days negotiations, which are being sought by representatives of 45,000 Amalgamated Clothing Workers, may delay the open break.

The employers have the upper hand. Only 10,000 of the 45,000 workers have employment, owing to the fact, employers say, they have no orders. They further contend they will be unable to operate in competition with other clothes-making centres if changes in the working agreement are not made.

The workers, half of whom assembled in meetings, voted rejection of the employers' demand, gave their delegates power to negotiate and pledged in the event that the employers "should force a struggle upon us" to put forth "all effort to bring this struggle to a successful conclusion."

The manufacturers decided to put their ultimatum into effect whether accepted by workers or not, feeling that with the lack of employment they could well risk such a step. However, union leaders said they did not expect employers to force a lockout immediately. Many of the 10,000 workers still employed are on part time.

The workers were not instructed to strike in the event the employers put into effect their proposed wage and work changes, but to report "infractions" to union officials.

"If the employers really want the things they ask for I think they know they will have to fight for them," said the union president, Sidney Hillman. "I think they must know we are not ready to give up the things which have made possible new standards in the clothing industry."

Denounces Clothing Union's Agents Here

A labor war involving nearly 10,000 workers engaged in making clothing in this city impends. The Clothing Manufacturers' Association of Boston, through its employment manager, Luther C. White, has severed relations with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and in an open letter has denounced the union agents as "unscrupulous, unfair and untrustworthy."

White's letter, breaking off relations with the union, in effect declares for the open shop in the Boston field of clothing manufacture. It is expected that plans will be laid by the workers for a general strike at their next meeting.

BAKER GIVES D. S. MEDAL TO GENERAL NIVELLE

So convenient and effective for sore throat

With gargles or sprays it is impossible to keep a sore throat under anything like continuous treatment. With Formamint, it makes no difference where you are, at work, in crowded car, shop, theatre or church, you can dissolve one of these delicious, almost candy-like tablets in your mouth once an hour or so. An effective yet harmless antiseptic is released and, carried by the saliva, continuously bathes the entire lining of the mouth and throat, checks germ growth, and gives the sore, infected tissues chance to heal.

Formamint tablets used when especially exposed to infection reduce your danger of catching sore throats, and even influenza, from others.

Children can—and should—use them freely as defence against throat affections and influenza which spread so readily in congested school-rooms.

Formamint is sold by all druggists. Any druggist will tell you how widely Formamint is recommended by throat specialists, physicians and dentists.

Do's and Don'ts for Auto Drivers

The American today prints the second installment of Don'ts and Don'ts for Autoists by Henry W. Sanborn. In view of the "safety first" campaign inaugurated by local officials, together with the hazardous conditions at this time of year, it is believed that they will be extremely helpful.

By HENRY W. SANBORN.

In putting out the arm to signal, do not withdraw it until it has been noticed by the driver in the rear. Move the arm, pointing intended direction.

Do not make quick turns without warning. Make them slowly and squarely.

When driving along a crowded thoroughfare, watch for "accident areas." Scan the street at some length for pedestrians who may dash out from behind wagons, other machines, doorways, etc.

Never apply brakes hard with clutch released. First cut off the gas, then brake gently, and then just before the engine stalls or overcomes the brake, slip the clutch.

Don't try to pass on a hill or curve, especially on a wet day.

Never drive fast at night in a territory with which you are unfamiliar.

Make mental notes of bad accident areas.

SHOW PROPER LIGHTS.

Don't drive too long.

Be sure you have proper lights so that they will not affect the eyes of yourself or others.

Don't drive in car tracks. Many dangers lurk there both to your person and your machine. If you must drive in car tracks always straddle them.

If you turn out into tracks to pass, cut the tracks square.

Never make a fast turn on a wet pavement.

Do not try to imitate taxicab or mailtruck drivers.

Never try to show your skill as a driver. The most careful driver is taxed to his utmost skill to avert accidents.

Do not belittle the inexperienced driver. Be patient and respectful and remember that you had to go through it yourself.

Don't drive fast in snow or on a road barely covered with snow. The dangers are never known until too late.

Always give the man with a heavy truck the right of way when possible, anticipate his position, and also the small car on a hill. The truck driver drives for a living and probably knows more about driving than you do.

KEEP TO THE RIGHT.

Don't take advantage of anyone because you have a fast car.

Keep to the right of the road when travelling at a slow pace. Otherwise someone may attempt to pass you on the right, just as you turn.

Overspeeding is not correctly based on so many miles per hour, but upon locality, conditions, etc. Sixty miles on a bare country road might be proper where fifteen would be excessive on a city street.

When meeting cattle, or other animals, slow down to one mile an hour until they are past. You can't tell which way they will go, and a cow can knock a locomotive off the track.

Don't drive with two wheels in the grass or off the road.

Don't try to get back on the road too quickly if two wheels run off. Turn the forward wheels and as soon as both are on the road, then turn them again to follow the road line, until the rear wheels are on.

In skidding, turn front wheels in direction of the skid. When car starts to respond, throw front wheels back into original direction, and until righted, vice versa.

Sloan's Liniment Kills Pain

PRICES OF MEATS MUCH LOWER

Lamb, Pork, Beef and Smoked Ham Costs Substantially Reduced

Housewives are to be happier—the price of steaks is coming down. Compared with costs of a month ago there has been a substantial reduction.

The best roasting pork on the market sold for 45 cents a pound just previous to Thanksgiving day. Today it is quoted at 38 cents. Fresh hams, formerly costing 32 cents and up per pound, are now 28 cents. Pork chops are now 38 cents a pound. Two weeks ago they cost 55 cents.

Bacon, formerly as high as 58 cents a pound, can now be bought for 48 cents. A big drop is recorded in smoked hams. A month ago smoked hams cost 50 and 55 cents and two weeks ago sold for 42 cents. Today they can be bought for 35 cents.

The prices of lamb today follow. Forms are 26 cents a pound; legs are 32 cents and leg 32 cents. Beef is lower. Face of the rump is selling for 32 cents.

In the vegetable line potatoes have taken the most noticeable decline. They cost recently as high as 18 cents a peck, but are selling today at 26 cents.

Last Income Tax Day Is December 15

Federal income taxpayers were warned today by Collector of Internal Revenue John J. Mitchell that this time for making payment of their fourth installment is not later than December 15 they bring no time extension as heard this year. It was due to numerous requests received by Collector Mitchell, relative to time extension to be allowed, that he deemed it necessary to inform those taxpayers that the December 15 at midnight, is the last time that those payments can be made without the taxpayer being subjected to the payment of penalties.

UNITED SHOE MADE GAIN

Boston Market Is Mixed, but Several Issues Rally; Curb Quiet and Irregular

The Boston market was irregular at the opening and did not show any definite trend during the morning, although it may be said to have slightly improved in tone. Trading was not good volume and ordinary breadth. Active issues were Big Chief, United Shoe and National Leather. United Shoe, which sold yesterday at its lowest in nineteen years, was a fraction on its first sale and gained a trifle more later. Agricultural Chemical began at a decline of 6, selling at 57¾, but soon rallied to 55⅝. Boston & Maine B sold at 66 on the morning transaction, a decline of 5. It established a new 1920 low. U. S. Smelting also sold at a new low for the year. United Drug receded three points. Wickwire was down one. Swift Island Creek and International Products advanced a point or more. Calumet & Hecla advanced four points on its first sale and later lost it all. Before the end of the morning it had rallied again and was up two.

Fractional gains were made by American Telephone, Boston & Elevated, East Butte, Mohawk, North Butte, New Idea, Nipissing, New England Telephone, National Leather, Lewis Inc. Swift International, Mexican Investment and Davis Daly. Among stocks to sustain small losses were Utah Consolidated, Mexican, Arizona, Copper Range, Old Dominion, St. Mary's Land, Trinity, Allen Truck, Eastern Manufacturing, Carson Hill and Ventura.

CURB WAS IRREGULAR.

The Curb had a dull opening, and an irregular price movement. Active stocks at the start were Denbigh, Eureka and Texans. Among those to advance at once were Crystal, Ophir & Monitana, Denbigh, Eureka and Texas.

Boston & Montana, Denbigh, Eureka Stride, Imperial and Silver Dome.

At the end of an hour Texans was up 1 cent at 25 cents, Ophir 1 cents at 43 cents, and Southern States 1 cent at 34 cents. Eureka was off 1 cents at 6 cents, Denbigh 1 cent at 8⅝ cents, and Boston & Montana 1 cents at 41 cents. Denbigh had recovered its loss.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES

An Opportunity of a Life Time for the Bond Investor

With lower money rates in sight, owing to the heavy liquidation in commodity markets, the trend of bond prices is toward the higher pre-war levels, and for that reason bond investors should not delay their bond purchases, especially as present quotations in many instances offer an opportunity of a lifetime to secure a return of

8% to 10%

This is particularly true of high grade railroad bonds, which are in a position now where they not only afford an exceptional income return, but, if held for a reasonable pull, possess unusual possibilities for market profits as well.

Many investment bargains among railroad bonds are listed in a circular on the bond situation which we will send to anyone free upon request.

U. S. IS REAPING LARGE PROFITS FROM CANADA

The United States is reaping large profits from Canada, according to bankers, loans and manufacturing plants operated by United States interests in the dominion. The war forced Canada to borrow from this country nearly a billion dollars, according to the estimate by the Bankers Trust Co.

This liability says that during the last six years Americans have invested around $300,000,000 in Canada, while we have received more than $90,000,000 in freight money, balances and the like.

Coal Production Increased

Coal production during Thanksgiving week was the largest in four years, being estimated at 11,416,000 tons. Anthracite production decreased 283,000 tons, totaling 1,682,000.

Wall Street Briefs

November receipts from the sale of oil by the Mexican Oil Co. amounted to $250,000, and this is the best showing ever made by this company for a month.

The first ten months of this year the net gain in the number of Bell telephones in service was 200,000, or 25 per cent, which is equal to about $15 a share. Net profit for full year is estimated at $2,000,000.

Statement made yesterday by the Cuban Cane Sugar Co. relative to the liquidation of sterling discount rates at Cuban banks, states that the company was forced for discount would make it unwise to declare a dividend on the preferred stock. Net profit for the year ended Sept. 30 last compared with $911,937 000 for the previous week.

The Guaranty Company of New York, principal bankers for the Cuban Cane Sugar Co., has purchased $5,000,000 general mortgage, 7 per cent. bond issue of the company, due in 1941, in operating income.

The Island Oil & Transport Co. reports operating revenue for October and its subsidiaries was $283,677, against $211,000 in September.

The Canadian National's gross increased $1,000,000 in October, while for ten months from January 1 its gain was $13,700,000.

For October the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway reports operating revenue $700,000, net $250,150, operating income $347,000, net income $250,000. For ten months the October net income of subsidiary companies was $283,677.

UNITED RETAIL CANDY THIRD of a series of 10 Reasons Why This Stock Should Be Purchased.

Officers and Directors: A combination of successful business organizers and leading candy men. Interests: The same interests responsible for the wonderful success of United Cigar Stores (Duke-Whelan) and having three nationally known candy manufacturers among its personnel (Edward Wise, Harry Fleurot and E. J. Shaughnessy).

OILS FIRST IN THE ADVANCE

Steels and Rails Improve During the Morning; Trading Is Active

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, but gains were moderate and there were some weak spots in the list. Oils were leaders in the upturn, but steels and rails improved during the forenoon. The bulk of the trading was in these three groups. The market was active, first hour transactions approximating 300,000 shares. Call money opened at 7 per cent. Demand sterling was weak, declining over three cents to $3.43 during the morning.

Among stocks to make the largest gains were Mexican Petroleum, Pan-American, Southern Pacific, Reading, United Fruit, International Harvester, Crucible, Chandler, Allan-Ste Gulf and American Locomotive. At their highest they were up from one to more than five points. Mexican Petroleum's gain was over five.

Weakest issues were Central Leather, American Woolen, American Sumatra, Tobacco Products, Food Products, Corn Products and Cuba Cane. The last named fell over at a year low. They were off from fractions to more than two points.

FIRST OFF AT OPENING.

Initial price changes were small when the market opened, but in a few minutes they were up. Gains by Mexican Petroleum and Pan-American made early gains, the former adding nearly a point more than a point, while the latter rose a fraction only. Other petroleum issues were lower as a rule. Steels were weak at the beginning. Crucible falling to retain a gain long. Rails had a mixed movement. Motors rallied a little. Coppers were lower from the outset. Cuba Cane Sugar was a strong issue, advancing on the strength of the high valuation placed on oil lands leased by the government. It reacted quickly.

Royal Dutch sold at a year low within a few minutes, and other issues to mount new depths for 1920 were Industrial Alcohol and U. S. Food Products. Southern Pacific showed a persistent tone, gaining several days. Lehigh Valley was another strong rail, agricultural Chemical slumped three points in the first hour but recovered most of the loss. The market was dull and narrow at the end of an hour, with Mexican Petroleum leading.

TRADERS MORE BEARISH.

The aggressive attitude of the bears yesterday reflects a change in sentiment in the last few days, it appears. The covering movement of last week rectified to some extent the technical weakness of the market. The latest Federal Reserve statement was disappointing to the bears. ment which has been expecting cheaper money. Reports from the agricultural regions is causing concern, if not alarm. Bank failures in the Northwest, it is said, are growing in a great farming section which is not calculated to give rise to alarm. When farmers cannot buy it will languish. The best campaign is to mend business conditions. While leaders in finance, industry and commerce are optimistic, there is apparently nothing indicative of its being immediate is cited. The bears are fortified by this and the recent gains retained by hopes. The bird in hand is honored and the one in the bush is too shy to reveal its identity.

Copper Market Firmer

The copper market was firmer yesterday, it being reported that leading agencies made sales at 14 cents a pound for December delivery. Another report says that metal could be obtained for this month at 13¾ cents. Anthracite production decreased 283,000 tons, totaling 1,682,000.

Dividend Declarations

American Exchange Securities Corporation declared quarterly dividends of 2 per cent. on the class A shares, payable Jan. 3 to holders of record Dec. 15.

Three Square Auto Co. declared quarterly dividends of 1¾ per cent. on the class A stock and 4½ per cent. on the class B, payable Jan. 3 to holders of record Dec. 20.

International Trust Co. declared quarterly dividends of 4½ per cent. on the $4,000,000 par value, payable Jan. 3 to holders of record Dec. 31.

Hamilton Investment Trust declared quarterly dividends of 1¾ per cent. on common and 1¾ per cent. on preferred, payable Jan. 1 to holders of record Dec. 21.

Cotton Market Opening

New ork, Dec. 7.—Considering weakness at Liverpool and the unfavorable weather map, underbone at the opening, although first prices were unchanged to 2 points lower. There was a little Southern hedge pressure, due in part to the decline of over 600 points. The bull sentiment among traders here prevented any material decline. Spot cotton closed quiet, 50 points lower; middling uplands, 29.40. Spot sales, 2,000 bales.

Futures opened steady with prices at the end of twenty minutes were 2 points lower to 1 point higher. Trade buying was in evidence on the first call, with offerings light. Liverpool cables were unexpectedly weak, and the market showed a sharp decline. Offerings were light, however, and the market soon rallied

CRIMSON BALKS ON TERMS

Army Willing to Come Here But Requested Return Game in West

West Point has turned down an invitation to meet Harvard in football next Fall. The Army team recently received the invitation and Major Daly, coach of the eleven, conferred with the Harvard authorities in hopes that the Crimson would play at the Polo Grounds, New York, or at West Point in 1922, providing the soldiers came to Cambridge next Fall.

This Harvard declined to do when the invitation was originally sent, and word has been received that West Point has refused a place on the 1921 schedule.

Ohio State has declined a place for a game what similar reason, and Notre Dame, which wished to play, has been tendered an engagement. A game with Indiana for October 8 has been clinched, and Holy Cross will probably be asked to play the 15th.

This would give the Centre eleven an October 22 booking in the Stadium. Colgate has been offered a date, and the games with Brown, Princeton and Yale are fixtures.

URBAN HAS ANOTHER JOB OFFERED HIM

Captain Louis Urban of the Boston College eleven states that no definite arrangements had been made in regard to his accepting any position when he completes his college course next June.

Besides the offer made to him to coach football at Creighton University, he has received a communication from Loyola University, New Orleans, asking him to coach the football, baseball and basketball teams. Urban is considering both offers. He may listen favorably to word regarding his entrance into West Point.

Loyola would make a fine opening for the Maroon and Gold leader, as it is a youthful institution, established in 1912 and already having an enrollment of 700 students.

HARVARD SKATERS START ON SEASON

Candidates for the Harvard varsity and freshman hockey teams meet tonight in the Union at 7. Coach Claflin and Captain Bigelow will outline the plans. Harvard's varsity and freshman schedules follow:

VARSITY

January 15, Williams at Boston; 22, Dartmouth at Boston; 29, Princeton at Boston; February 5, at Philadelphia; 12, Princeton at Philadelphia; 19, Yale at Boston.

FRESHMEN

January 8, Cambridge High; 12, M. I. T. (24); 13, Dartmouth (24); 22, Andover; 29, Exeter; February 2, Milton at Milton; 26, St. Mark's at Southboro; 12, Yale (24) at Boston.

Games for the varsity will be played at the new Boston Arena.

GREEN AND ORANGE TO MEET ON TRACK

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 7.—One of the big athletic events of the Winter season scheduled is the indoor track duel between Syracuse University and Dartmouth, and the rivalry is intense since these two colleges have taken up athletic relations.

St. Louis, Dec. 7.—Jack Lawler beat Eddie Shannon in eight rounds here, knocking him down in the third and winning all the way.

Tiger Prospects Bright for Big 1921 Team

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

"The Omelets will be served."

Columns of comment have been published on the anticipated return to Princeton football next Fall of all but two of the Tigers who starred this year's games with Harvard and Yale. Princeton men are pleased at the publication of such comment, for it serves as excellent propaganda for the 1921 eleven, but Princeton men invariably append the remark, "The Omelets will be served."

They believe, and with good and sufficient reason, that there is something ominous—for Princeton opponents—in the Omelets.

From time to time this Fall the Omelets were heard from. They comprised the team of ineligibles which perhaps more than anything else was responsible for the sturdy type of play the Tiger varsity offered. The Omelets were the Tiger varsity quite often in their practice games, and it was when such happenings leaked out they gained their fame.

Next Fall, if everything goes per expectations, these ineligible Omelets will become eligible varsity candidates, and while Princeton football will gain less from its recent freshman team than either Yale or Harvard gain from their respective yearling arrays, Princeton is far from worried over that fact.

Many Former Varsity Stars Out for Team

Among the Omelets are Pixley, the Ohio State lineman of one year ago who won a position on the American's second All-America eleven, and gained a similar place on Walter Camp's third team; Owsley, the regular Navy tackle of one year ago; Hendrion, a former member of the Pittsburgh Panther backfield, and Don Griffin, who, last year, as captain of the University of Pennsylvania freshman team, was hailed as the greatest football prospect ever to matriculate at the Philadelphia university.

Then there were "Hoops" Snively, end on the 1922 team; "Pink" Baker, and Bill Morse, guards on 1921's varsity squad, and Louis Lipscomb, the old Exeter centre.

These men, together with the outstanding players on the freshman team of this Fall, and the varsity men who remain, present about as promising a squad as any college in the East can boast, and a continuation of Tiger prominence in football seems certain.

The leading candidates follow:

Ends—Altmon, varsity; Croft, Grey, Jones, varsity subs; Snively, 1922 team; Tyson, freshman team and St. Paul's School.

Tackles — Keck, Hooper, Rutan, varsity (the last named will be regular until injured); McNamara, varsity substitute; Pixley, Ohio State; Owsley, Navy; Millard, Morrison, freshman team.

Guards — McMannon, Dickinson, varsity; Towers, varsity substitute; Baker, Moran, 1919 varsity; Pachal, Barclay, freshman team and Hill School.

Quarterbacks — Lourie, Murrey, varsity; Gorman, varsity substitute.

Unbeaten Freshmen Yale's Hope

Of all the members of the so-called Big Three, Yale suffers greatest through the coming graduation proceedings, for in the list who will draw their diplomas are Callahan, Acosta, Dickens, Walker, Galvin, Dilworth, Shevlin, Kempton, Murphy, Kelley, Campbell, Francis and Neville, all of whom were regular or semi-regular varsity men during the present season.

But Yale has a number of varsity and varsity substitute men of its squad remaining, and has the best freshman team in Big Three circles to draw from.

Under the guidance of Chet LaRoche the freshman array won all its games, defeating both Princeton and Harvard yearling teams in the course of the season. In the lineup were three stars of unquestionable worth. Should Yale in the intervening months establish a real coaching system there seems every reason to look for an excellent brand of football from the 1921 Eli varsity.

The leading Yale freshman prospects are Captain Blair, a tackle from Hotchkiss; Neidlinger, a halfback from Andover, and Ohearn, the former Exeter quarterback.

The leading members of the array Yale coaches will have to work with next Fall are:

Ends—Bean, Cutler, varsity; Eagan, Kernan, Dutton, varsity substitutes; Hullman, Lincoln, freshman team, respectively from Worcester Academy and Hotchkiss.

Guards—Herr, Cyrilkanik, Quaille, varsity substitutes.

Centres—Jones, varsity; Norris, freshman and Hotchkiss.

Harvard Loses Star Linemen

Next Spring's commencement exercises will dig a big hole in the centre of Harvard's varsity line, for among those scheduled to wind up their under graduate careers are Havemeyer, centre; Woods and Tolbert, guards and Sedgwick tackle. These four linemen together with Captain Horween and Dick Humphrey are the men whose services will be greatly missed.

The veterans who remain, and the second team men due for promotion, and several of the more prominent members of Joe Hyam's yearling eleven, however, present Harvard with prospects that are far from unpromising. The list follows:

Centres—Emery, Kuhnhardt, varsity substitutes; Clark, 1923 team; Bradford, Kernan, freshman team.

Quarterbacks — Buell, Fitzgerald, varsity; Colon, second team.

Princeton Outlook Appears Rosiest

Looking ahead into the future than perhaps one should do, Princeton appears to have by far the best prospects of any of the Big Three combination, with Yale, through its more impressive list of newcomers, slightly shading Harvard in the matter of material. What the respective coaches will do with their respective candidates, however, is still another matter and it will not be until the 1921 season has progressed several weeks along its course that a true light can be thrown on that question.

EXETER BOOMS WINTER SPORT

Hockey, Basketball and Tank Schedules Indicate a Busy Season

Exeter, N. H., Dec. 7.—Exeter's hockey, basketball and swimming dates, as arranged to date, are:

Hockey— Jan. 8, English High; 12, Melrose High; 15, Brookline High (pending); 19, Arlington High; 22, Stone School; 26, M. I. T. (pending); 29, Harvard freshmen at Cambridge; Feb. 2, Cambridge Latin; 5, Andover; 9, Stoneham High; 12, Manchester (N. H.) High; 19, Browne and Nichols; 22, Dartmouth freshmen.

Basketball—Jan. 15, open; 22, Wentworth Institute; 28, Thornton Academy; Feb. 5, Tilton Seminary; 9, Westbrook Seminary; 14, Tufts freshmen; 19, N. H. State freshmen; 26, Harvard freshmen at Cambridge; March 2, open; 5, N. H. State at Durham; 9, open; 19, Andover.

Swimming—Jan. 29, English High; Feb. 1, M. I. T. freshmen; 19, Huntington; 26, Harvard freshmen; March 12, Brookline; 19, Andover at Andover.

GIANTS TO TRAIN AT SAN ANTONIO

New York, Dec. 7.—The selection of San Antonio as the training base of the Giants next Spring was announced by Secretary Joseph D. O'Brien of the New York club. The announcement followed the receipt of a letter from President H. J. Benson of the San Antonio club that the Chamber of Commerce had agreed to make certain improvements on the clubhouse, as requested by Manager McGraw.

It is understood that the players will be assembled about March 1. A few exhibition games are to be played on the homeward route, but probably not more than six or seven.

BIG FELLOWS BOX IN DEMPSEY PRELIMS

New York, Dec. 7.—Promoter Tex Rickard of Madison Square Garden has signed over the card one hour for December 14 exclusively to middleweights and heavyweights. Jack Dempsey will defend his title in the return bout against Bill Brennan of Chicago. This contest is scheduled for fifteen rounds or a decision.

Two ten-round bouts are scheduled between Bartley Madden and Bill Tate, colored heavyweights, and Bartly Madden and Charley Weinert, heavies. A six-round bout will bring together Marty Farrell and Frank McGuire, middleweights.

VICTOR IN MAT MATCH TO WRESTLE CYCLONE

The winner of the match between Tom Drasic and Carl Cogel Thursday night at the Old Scout Opera House, will be matched against Cyclone Burns at a later date. Drasic and Vogel are both rugged fellows and the affair promises to afford a lot of excitement.

Cyclone Burns, now in the light heavyweight class, will find himself against a past master in Frank Gerhard, the clever Bohemian, in one of the other numbers of an all-star program.

TWENTY OUT FOR B. C. QUINTET

Football Stars and Veterans Form Strong Nucleus; Marietta to Play Here

A squad of twenty candidates answered the first call of Captain Maloney of the Boston College basketball team at St. Mary's gymnasium, Cambridge, which will be the home floor of the Maroon and Gold for this season.

Almost an entire veteran lineup was present, and enough extra promising material to insure a fast team. Besides Captain Maloney, Ed and Owen Gallagher are veteran backs; Ronald Morier of the B. C. H. S. at centre, and John Gannon, one of the stars of last season's five, and Tom Murphy of Cambridge, are forwards.

Luke Urban of football fame, is pretty well used up after a strenuous grid season, and is due for a few weeks' rest, during which time he will coach the quintet. Jim Fitzpatrick will get into the lineup as soon as his injured shoulder will allow him to take active part once more.

His presence will add a lot of strength to the lineup. Ben Hodorick and Jim Kennedy, other football stars, are also booked to appear.

Manager Kirby has booked a fine attraction in the Marietta five representing the college whose football team made such a drive through the Maroon and Gold a few weeks ago. The Ohioans are popular with Boston sport fans.

The season opens at Kingston, R. I., next Friday, with the Rhode Island State College quintet. The first home game comes Monday, when the Maroon and Gold faces St. Michael's College of Vermont. Manager Kirby will announce his complete schedule this week.

SYRACUSE DECLINES GAME IN SAN FRANCISCO

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Formal declination by Syracuse of an invitation to send its eleven to San Francisco for a game there on New Year's Day with the Olympic Athletic Club was sent last night. It was declined because the Orange has no Rose training.

Contracts for a game with Brown here on October 15 were mailed out today. This gives Syracuse five games definitely carded for 1921. They are Dartmouth, Nov. 19; Colgate, Nov. 12; Maryland, Nov. 5; Pittsburgh, Oct. 22; Brown, Oct. 15. It is likely that Holy Cross will be booked for one of the remaining games.

YANKS PREPARE FOR SOME TALL TRADING

New York, Dec. 7.—The New York baseball club is in the market for a new pitcher, a catcher and one outfielder. Miller Huggins already has made a big offer to the Athletics for Joe Dugan, whom he wants for that spot at third, but Connie Mack has declined to sell the former Holy Cross star. However, Mack may be persuaded to trade him.

The leader of the Yankees is hot on the trail of Rice of the Senators, and is negotiating with Clark Griffith. He may not land Rice, but he may get Ayers of the other Washington outfielders, as Griffith, it is understood, is determined to shake up his club.

DEER SLAYERS GET BUSY IN BERKSHIRES

North Adams, Dec. 7.—With more than a score of deer reported killed on the opening day of the season, Northern Berkshire hunters were encouraged to greater effort during the remainder of the week. About ten deer were killed at Hawley, which was a popular hunting ground.

In the Sand Springs section of Pownal, Vt., Hastings Murphy shot a large doe, which was one of a herd of five, exactly six minutes after the season opened.

SPORT EDITORIAL

The Price of a Bloody Nose.

Mr. William Brennan is to receive an amount said to be $35,000 for meeting Jack Dempsey, the heavyweight champion.

The consensus of opinion among the sporting writers of the land seems to be that Mr. Brennan's end is merely the price of a beating, that he has little chance to win against Dempsey.

A man might lose the sight of both eyes, or an arm, or a leg, and get much less in a damage suit than Mr. Brennan will receive. The greatest injuries apt to accrue to him, a well-trained man, are not likely to extend beyond a bloody nose, or a pair of black eyes.

However, $35,000 is not the top price for these minor mishaps, easily repaired by a visit to a doctor, and the expenditure of a few dollars. Jess Willard got $100,000 for taking a beating from Dempsey at Toledo, losing a quart or so of blood, and sustaining facial contusions, but otherwise not being seriously damaged.

Georges Carpentier is to receive $200,000 for meeting Dempsey, and, in the opinion of the experts, will also get a poundair of knocks.

Some day, of course, some chap will come along and give Mr. Dempsey a pounding in his turn, but the present champion is certain to be well rewarded.

Men rush, in anger, into physical combat over trivial questions, and for no compensation receive bloody noses, black eyes, and lacerated feelings. The scale of prices established by Mr. Dempsey shows that even a bloody nose may be turned to profit if a man knows how.

Elect New Harvard Captain Friday

The new Harvard football captain will be elected next Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock probably after the whole squad has posed for a photograph in a Cambridge studio.

Kit Kane, Wy Hubbard and Jack Crocker are among the possibilities with the first mentioned most likely to grab the title.

Kane is a resident of Marion and prepared at St. George's School and has been a regular for two seasons, one as an end and the other as a tackle.

Hubbard was regular right tackle this Fall, but served only as a second string man last season, although he played in all important games, and started the Oregon contest as a guard. He is a graduate of Milton Academy. Crocker is an end and his home is in Fitchburg. This year was his first with the squad.

WILLARD'S KANSAS HOME QUARANTINED

Lawrence, Kansas, Dec. 7.—The home of Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion of the world, was today placed under strict quarantine when two of his children became ill with diphtheria. The children, a boy and a girl, are said to be seriously ill.

The quarantine will not materially affect Willard's training plans for a bout March 17 with the winner of the Dempsey-Brennan match.

590 Freshies Out

Five hundred and ninety realmen are taking Winter athletic exercises at Harvard. Of this number 139 are out for squash, and 197 for Winter crew. Fifty-three are basketball performers and three less are out for track. Forty-three have selected fencing and two wrestling.

Leases Race Course

Hot Springs, Ark., Dec. 7.—"Snillin' Jim" McClelland has just leased the Oaklawn track at Hot Springs to defer his train horses this Winter. He has the biggest string of thoroughbreds in the world, close to 150 head.

Mates Give Blood to Save Gipp's Life

South Bend, Dec. 7.—Team mates of George Gipp, famous Notre Dame halfback, planned today to give their blood in the hope of saving the life of Gipp, who has been critically ill here for the past two weeks.

H. Anderson and Larson, linesmen, who played with Gipp had their blood tested yesterday for transfusion into Gipp's body.

Gipp has shown no improvement since Saturday physicians said today and it is feared that he cannot continue the fight much longer in his present condition.

AGGIE QUINTET HAS HEFTY SCHEDULE

Amherst, Dec. 7.—The Massachusetts Aggie quintet will go against some of the strongest teams in the East this season. Many teams appear for the first time on the schedule. Vermont, Middlebury, Wesleyan, Trinity and St. Lawrence all make their first appearance. The schedule follows:

HAVERHILL TO PICK LEADER IN CAPITAL

TITLE HOLDERS IN BIG BOUT

Fruzetti and Valgar Rivals In Feature at Triple A Show Tonight

By JACK CONWAY.

Benny Valgar, world's greatest boxer at 118 pounds, will go into the ropes from under Jimmy Fruzetti, New England lightweight champion in their ten-round bout at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building, tonight.

As a ring destroyer Valgar is one of our best little performers. It developed Frankie Britt a couple of times, made Johnny Hill see the buzzers and stamped a couple of thousand wallops in the general direction of Charley Parker, besides giving Johnny Dundee the toughest battle the South Wop has ever had in Boston.

Jimmy Fruzetti Is a Fighting Champion

Those persons who don't know Jimmy Fruzetti of Brockton probably think the New England champion has taken too tough an assignment. A lot of folks, however, who have watched Jimmy in the ring all the way past a lot of perfectly good boys without getting sore at the opinion that Valgar is going to have the battle of his gay young life this go.

There will also be three eight-round bouts, Frankie Brogan of Lawrence will meet Kid Kansas of Providence, Kid Lee of Chelsea will oppose Goldy Ahearn of Providence, while Jack Mansfield of Lawrence will battle Harry Mitchell of this city.

Sunday Sports and Boxing Bills Up

The Sunday sports bill and boxing bill are before the House in the number of Massachusetts cities and towns. Both of these measures were passed by the last Legislature but provided for a referendum; that is to say, unless a large vote of electors were permitted to accept these opportunity until each time as the could be placed before the voters at a regular election. Both bills were through the Legislature with flying colors and were signed by Governor Coolidge.

In Boston the Sunday sports bill and boxing bill were accepted by the City Council and Mayor Peters. Boxing, as conducted under the rules of the Boxing Commission, has been much like the same boxing as the Y. M. C. A., K. of C. and War Camp Recreation Department during the war, but the Sunday sports bill is the same kind of clean shows that are staged at Harvard, Yale, Technology, B. U., Dartmouth and the other colleges.

PLAN FOR EASTERN COLLEGE NET TITLE

Harvard tennis management is planning an Eastern States championship tournament in Cambridge on May 13, 14 and 16. The athletic committee has still to approve. The championship team rather than individual champions will be decided on basis of points based on victories at Amherst, Brown, Bowdoin, Colgate, Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Hobart, Cross, Maine, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Wesleyan, Williams and Yale, and replies from several enthusiastically praising the plan have been received.

Harvard Nine Trains at Georgia Tech

Harvard will make its Southern baseball headquarters during the Georgia Tech field this Spring. The team has abandoned its customary barnstorming invasion of the South, dropping Annapolis, Georgetown and Virginia, to spend four days at Atlanta, meeting University of Georgia, Georgia Tech and probably Oglethorpe University. Columbia will be played April 23 at New York on the way back home.

"I'M glad you kept her." Gloria sat down, and elbow on the back of the bench, and regarded Jennie coolly—with more of her native arrogance than she had shown thus far during her visit. "I've been waiting to have a little talk with you."

"I appreciate your desire to give me your confidence, Gloria." Jennie said evenly.

"It wasn't to give you my confidence that I wanted to see you!" was the sharp reply.

"I think I'd better go." And again Sue tried to rise.

"I'd rather have you stay," said Gloria, "and know just what it's about."

"Yes, please do stay." And Jennie once more drew the unwilling Sue back upon the bench.

"I guess, Jennie," Gloria continued coolly, "that you know about Kenneth and me."

"I guess every one does who saw the parting scene this morning."

Gloria's dark eyes straight upon Jennie, gleamed imperiously. "What I wanted to say won't take many words. You've been playing around a lot with Kenneth. There's to be no more of that."

There was no longer any doubt in Jennie as to what was to be her relationship with Gloria. They were to fight. But she controlled herself, and spoke evenly.

"If I've played with Kenneth, it's been because he's asked me to. If you want this stopped, why don't you order Kenneth to stop asking me?"

"I guess I know the way to manage this!"

"And I guess you know, then," Jennie taunted in her even voice, "that if you were to order Kenneth to stop asking me, he'd ask me all the more. Well, you ought to know, then, that trying to order me is just about as effective!"

"You mean you won't do it?"

"I'm not saying, Gloria, for I don't know. But I shall do just about what happens to please me."

"I gave you your chance to keep out of this on your own accord!" Gloria flamed at her. "Now you'll have nothing to do with it! You'll be put out!"

"Yes?" Jennie queried. "And how?"

"I shall inform Mrs. Harrison that you are an uncongenial, unendurable person to me." Gloria answered furiously. "As I am her daughter-in-law to be, there'll be no way out of it except for her to ask you to go."

Jennie regarded her steadily.

"Well—are you going to make me do that?" Gloria demanded.

"Gloria, you're a dear, sweet child—but just a trifle spoiled," Jennie returned. "You know you need a spanking, Gloria—you really do. And you know I could give you a spanking, too. The only thing that restrains me is consideration for Mrs. Harrison: it might humiliate her a little for her prospective daughter-in-law to be spanked in public. But if I should change my mind and decide to spank you, it will be a strictly high-class job—none better of its kind."

Gloria was speechless; she could only glare.

"Or perhaps I might save your going to Mrs. Harrison," Jennie continued in her even voice. "I might go to her myself, tell her of your objection to me, tell her of your threats, and offer to remove myself. I know that would make her simply adore you. Now, run along, Gloria—I want to be alone to think it all over. You really might as well go, for Sue isn't going to play tennis with you, and flopping about your ears when you're chasing shots around the court which you never get. I'm sure Kenneth must have noticed how funny you looked when you were playing with him yesterday. I'd go put on something else, Gloria—I really would."

Gloria was on her feet, trembling. "You—you—" But she choked, and could get no more out.

"You little Wyoming runt!" supplied Jennie pleasantly. "I'd forgotten it—but I see you remember all about that little debate we had in the squash court at Braithewood four years ago."

Gloria whirled about, and furiously crossed the tennis lawn toward the house.

"Jennie!" breathed Sue in amazement. "Jennie!" And then, bursting—I can't understand—most of the time you're so gentle you seem almost afraid of everybody—and then sometimes you wake up and simply eat people raw."

I Want to Think

"Don't talk now, Sue," Jennie returned. "I want to think."

Though she had spoken composedly enough to Gloria, that had been only because she had learned the great value and advantage of self-control; within she was blazing as fiercely as on that day of long ago when in unleashed fury she had thrown Gloria to the floor of the squash court and sat upon her stomach. She wanted to strike—strike fiercely and hurtingly! . . . And then in her swift thinking it came upon her that nothing she could do, provided she could do it, would be such effective and sweet revenge as balking Gloria's engagement to Kenneth. That would be wonderful!

And then she saw another advantage in this revenge. If she should help break the engagement, and do it in an unobtrusive manner, yet so that Mrs. Harrison perceived that she had done it—why, nothing else could possibly so strengthen her position with Mrs. Harrison!

She was smiling half-humorously when she looked again at Sue. "I don't especially blame you for not longing to have Gloria as a sister-in-law. As I told you, I've never hired out as a flirt before, and I don't believe I have any special gifts for that trade—but if you still want me to try, I'll see what I can do."

"Oh, Jennie—if you only will—" "Wait a second. There's a condition. Kenneth will have eyes and time for only Gloria. I can do nothing if I try. Understand, you and your mother must help. Whenever Kenneth is at home, you and your mother must manage to occupy Gloria's attention from time to time—that will create a sort of vacancy and make an opportunity for Kenneth to be polite to me."

Sue promised. That evening Kenneth came home; he had arranged to commute by the railroad until the Myra was in active service. After dinner there was informal dancing in the living room. Gloria danced two numbers with Kenneth and then in a most natural manner Mrs. Harrison drew her into conversation.

"You two dance." Sue said to Jennie and Kenneth. "It's my turn to play."

And so they began to dance. Outwardly Jennie was shy, even deprecatory; inwardly she was afire with the determination to make herself as attractive as possible to Kenneth. She danced with all her skill, all the little graces, and over trying to give Kenneth the sense that he was leading her. She saw he was delighted with her as a partner, and a glance from Sue spoke eloquently of the contrast between her dancing and Gloria's. The one-step with their interpolated variations at an end, Sue begged Jennie to sing; and Jennie, in her warm mezzo, which the really excellent master at Braithewood had done much to develop and bring under her control, sang "Habanera" from "Carmen," after that "Ave Maria," she refused to sing again, and insisted that the dancing be resumed, and offered to play in Sue's stead.

Danced With Jennie

Kenneth crossed and asked Gloria to dance, but Gloria's wild resentment prompted her to reply, with a fairly well-managed show of indifference, that she was engaged in conversation with his mother. So Kenneth danced again with Jennie, and at the end of the dance brought them to the door, wide open to the night. Kenneth, with a "let's have just a minute of fresh air," swung through and out upon the piazza, and drawing her hand through his arm led her down upon the walk.

"I thought you were wonderful that night on the Astor roof," he enthused, "but now you seem even more wonderful! You are the best dancer I ever danced with!"

"Oh, hardly that," she laughed. "But if I danced a little better than most girls, it's just because I like it a little better."

"If you like it that way, then dancing's one thing we'll never disagree about." He spoke lightly, yet there was real interest beneath his words. "But the way you sing! I didn't know before that you sang. You could do a lot with that voice if you cared to. I know, for I've helped back one or two musical plays—and, believe me, no careful pawnbroker would loan more than ten cents upon the voices of most of the musical comedy prima donnas. You're ungowning new marvels each day. What else can you do?"

"Nothing. I, guess. And what you've spoken about doesn't seem remarkable to me. I just happen to like to do those things—that's all there is about it."

They were now a considerable, distance from the house. "You can't explain it away—you can't make yourself commonplace—you're simply wonderful!" He halted, and laid a hand upon the hand resting on his arm. "I think you are simply wonderful!"

"And do you know what I think about you?" she asked in a grave voice.

"What?"

"I think you are holding my hand."

He started at this directness, then laughed softly. "Why, I rather thought that same thing myself."

"Does that mean that you are about to propose to me?"

Again he started. "Why?"

"I just learned that you were engaged to Gloria. I wondered if two engagements a day was your regular allowance."

The moonlight showed him a mischievous gleam in her face. "You look demure, but I always said there was a little devil in you," he exclaimed in a wry but pleased tone—"a sharp little devil—a nice clever little devil."

"The little devil asks me to thank you. But before you go ahead and really propose to me, I want to congratulate you about Gloria. I hope you will both be very happy."

"And I hope that you and Gloria are going to be good friends."

"I'm willing to be friends with Gloria. But it all depends upon Gloria. And whether Gloria wants to be real friends, that rather depends upon whether you make it known to Gloria that you'd like things that way."

"Oh, I'll make that clear to Gloria. You're Sue's best friend—we should all be good friends—and you know I like you a lot."

"There'll not be much chance of our ever being friends if we stay out here any longer on the first day of Gloria's engagement." She gently freed her hand. "I think we'd better go in."

Inside, Kenneth advanced to Gloria. "Jennie was just congratulating us," he said. "I told her that I hoped that you and she—all of us in fact—were always going to be the best of friends."

With a control that was attained with difficulty Gloria replied:

"I'm sure we shall be."

But later, alone on the stairway as they went to bed, she glowered furiously at Jennie.

Jennie inquired in a taunting whisper:

"Did you order Mrs. Harrison to invite me to leave?"

Choking, Gloria hurried by her without an answer.

The following evenings there was a similar procedure. Never before had Jennie consciously tried to win the attention of a man, and the novelty of the experience added piquancy to the more serious purposes which were involved in her plan. And it seemed to her that she was partially succeeding; it seemed that Kenneth was admiring her more and more.

And then a new element entered this affair. She was glad when Kenneth, came home at the end of the day, she gladdened at the tones of his hand, she was tremblingly happy when swinging in his arms in the dance. She awoke suddenly to this unexplicated interest, and a question asked itself sharply of her; was this relationship, which she had plunged into almost as a matter of cold-blooded business, was this intimacy begetting a result she had never dreamed of?—was she beginning really to care? . . . She did not let herself answer; she put the question from her.

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

Copyright, 1920, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"PAT thinks it would be jolly to stay out here all the year round, and so I've an inspiration. Guess what?" said Virginia.

We had finished our dinner and were comfortably settled in the big living room at Dreamwold. Our visit to the second-honeymooners at the old Harrison place was starting off with an ease and comfort and an air of simple family joy such as I'd never felt since coming from my country home to the big city.

"She has an inspiration," repeated Pat, nodding at Virginia with a twinkle of enjoyment and appreciation. "Herself do be havin' them about one day—and 'tis excellent hearing they are. Come now, darling, tell them what you want to say."

Virginia ruffled his thatch of gray hair with a straying hand, and looking at us with a wistful smile that asked our pardon if her love bubbled over more than we thought dignified, she said:

"We're all four of us so happy that we ought to be thinking how to make other people happy, too. There's young Neal and our little Phoebe. Why shouldn't they have each other and a home and the bliss it will bring them? And there's my apartment in town. See the big idea?"

Her Big Idea

Jim and I looked at each other uneasily. We both realised in a flash that even though love had "gentled" our Virginia, it hadn't completely altered our high-spirited proud sister. Her big idea was probably to arrange for a wedding at once and to let Phoebe and Neal reap the benefit of her apartment before her year's lease ran out. And once she got that idea in her head she would want to "put it through," as Jim had insisted even while I argued that we owed it to Father Andrew as well as to the riddles themselves to await the outcome of his trip.

"What is the big idea?" I asked, sparring for time and wondering if Jim would array himself on Jeanie's side against me and my feeling of loyalty to the dear father who had gone to investigate Neal's right to his name.

"Don't you see without my saying?" asked Virginia, with a gentleness now to her. "They can have my apartment—a year of it—while they save money to buy profits of their own. A nest all made to order. I think we ought to get the invitations out right away and arrange for the wedding out here this month."

"'Tis beautiful, dearest," agreed Pat radiantly. Then to us, "You'll not be denying that 'tis a lovely thought and practical as well?"

"And when you come right down to it," said Virginia generously, "to whom do we owe every bit of it?"

"'Twas a lucky day for the Harrison family and for one Pat Dalton when little Anne Lee changed her name," murmured Pat seriously.

"I'll say so," laughed Virginia. "I don't want to burble about it. But I wonder what we'll ever do to show Anne how we feel about"—

"You'll find a way—if need be," burst in Jim, striking a note that stood out from the gentle melody which had been played. "And the first thing you can do to show my girl how you feel about the dear, loving sweetness of her is to save her from being a contributory cause to hurting someone she loves."

"What do you mean, Jimmie?" asked Virginia.

"I mean that you mustn't rush Phoebe and Neal into a wedding while Father Andrew is away."

"Oh, Jim!" she protested. "How silly! Mr. Hyland can't be very sentimental about being at the wedding or he wouldn't have chosen this particular season to go off on a hunting trip with a couple of men as he's done."

"How flattering," said Virginia, non-committally.

"Yes—a tribute to a rare personality," replied Jim. "For Anne's sake you won't fail to pay your tribute, too, will you, dear? We aren't going to worry about a month's waste rent or a month's postponed happiness, are we—when the first Harrison chance to honor Anne comes along?"

"You bet not!" cried Virginia unexpectedly.

Then as unexpectedly she pushed to my side and drew my head against her heart.

"Some girl, your little wife—Jimmie!" she said. "And you can count on Jeanie to give her the four-square deal she deserves."

"You make me very happy," said Jim, solemnly.

I wonder if ever woman was happier and more peaceful than I was then.

Never had a woman meant what this woman meant, and yet he could not define that meaning. What need of religion, of faith in an unseen order when this existed? To have this woman in the midst of chaos would be enough!

Faith in an unseen order! As he walked, his mind returned to the argument by which he had sought to combat her doubts—and his own. Whence had the argument come? It was new to him—he had never formulated it before—that pity and longing and striving were a justification and a proof. Had a herself inspired, by some unknown psychological law, this first attempt of his to reform the universe, this theory which he had spoken than thought? Or had it been the knowledge of her own longing, and his desire to assuage it? As twilight fell, as his spirits ebbed, he could not apply it now—it meant nothing to him, eroded him, there was in it no solace. To regain his footing once more, to climb again without this woman whom he needed, and might not have! Better to fall, to be engulfed. . . . The vision of her, tall and straight, with the roses on her breast, tortured him.

He walked on, slowly, to feel stealing on him that desperate longing for adventure which he had known so well in his younger days. And he did not resist. The terror with which it had once inspired him was gone, or lingered only in the form of a delicious sense of uncertainty and anticipation. Anything might happen to him—anything would be grateful: the thought of his study in the parish house was unbearable; the Dalton street which had mocked and repelled him suddenly became alluring with its champaigns of light and inviting stretches of darkness. In the block ahead, rising out of the night like a tower blazing with a hundred beacons, Hodder saw a hotel, heard the faint yet eager throbbing of music, beheld silk-boasted figures flitting from automobiles and carriages across the white glare of the pavement,—figures of men and women.

He hastened his steps, the music grew louder and louder in his ears, he gained the ornamental posts crowned by their incandescent globes, made his way through the loiterers, entered the revolving doors of the restaurant,' and stood staring into it as at a blurred picture. The hotel crashed a popular air, and step above the mingled voices and laughter. He sat down at a vacant table near the door, and presently became aware that a waiter had been for some time at his elbow.

"What will you have, sir?"

Then he remembered that he had not eaten, discovered that he was hungry, and ordered some sandwiches and beer. Still staring, the figures began to differentiate themselves, although they all appeared, somehow, in perpetual motion; hurrying, though seated. It was like gazing at a quivering cinematograph. Here and there ribbons of smoke curled upward, adding volume to the blue cloud that hung over the room, which in turn was dissipated in spots by the industrious electric fans. Everywhere he looked he met the glances of people; even of the table next him, they were not so absorbed in their escorts as to be able to resist flinging him covert glances between the shrieks of laughter in which they intermittently indulged. The cumulative effect of this was to be intoxicating, and for a long time he was unable to examine closely any one person. What he saw was a composite woman with flushed cheeks and solicitting eyes. On the walls, heavily framed in the German style, he read, in Gothic letters:

"Wer liebt nicht Wein, Weib, und Gesang,
Er bleibt ein Narr sein Leben lang."

The waiter brought the sandwiches and beer, yet he did not eat. In the middle distance certain figures began insistently to stand out,—figures of women sitting alone; wherever he looked he met a provoking gaze. One woman, a little farther away than the rest, seemed determinedly bent on getting a nod of recognition, and it was gradually borne in upon Hodder's consciousness that her features were familiar. In avoiding her eyes he studied the men at the next table,—or rather one of them, who loudly ordered the waiters about, who told brief anecdotes that were uproariously applauded; whose pudgy, bejewelled fingers were continually feeling for the bottle in the ice beside his chair, or nudging his companions with easy familiarity; whose little eyes, set in a heavy face, lighted now and again with a certain expression. . . .

Suddenly Hodder pushed back his chair and got to his feet, overcome by a choking sensation like that of being asphyxiated by foul gases. He must get out at once, or faint. What he had seen in the man's eyes had aroused in him sheer terror, for it was the image of something in his own soul which had summarily gained supremacy and led him hither, unresisting, to its own abiding-place.

Bachelor Girl's Reflections

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

THE first love affair is a miracle, the second an adventure, the third an event—and all the rest merely episodes.

A woman's whole life is spent on an altar. She is always worshipping something—an ideal, a fetich, an art, a fad, a prophet, a pet dog, a man—or herself.

We used to speak of the "fall from grace"; but the modern debutante doesn't wait to fall; she dives head foremost, and merrily floats out on the sea of experience.

That irresistible impulse which a woman always has to cuddle up a fluffy kitten and coo to it is the same emotion that a man feels at the sight of a pretty woman—and mistakes for love.

"Americans are now spending $80,000,000 a year for candy"—and every married woman wonders who got her share.

No woman can resist the man whose gaze of adoration is as fixed and perpetual as his teeth, and who wears his "devoted" manner as naturally and constantly as he does his collar.

It takes just about a year of marriage for a man to become accustomed to going home regularly and staying there evenings—and just about another year for him to begin to wonder why he does it.

When a man declares that a woman "understands" him, you may safely conclude that she knows just enough about him to serve him his favorite dishes, overlook his favorite weaknesses, laugh at his favorite stories, and applaud his favorite illusions about himself.

In love-making as in complexions and jewels, the real thing, dearie, never appears quite as brilliant and dazzling as the imitation.

In love a man on his knees is worth two on a pedestal—but, alas, a man seldom goes down on his knees to anything but an automobile, nowadays.

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

THERE is no use of weeping for everything you ask; the fairies can't be keeping forever on the task. No doubt they are so busy with orders rushing in, it keeps them faint and dizzy and also tired and thin. Perchance it would be fruitless to ask a million bones, an idle whim, and booties, to pray for precious stones. I know I can't be granted whatever I desire; but I would be enchanted to be a true live wire. It's been my one ambition for many and many a year; a live wire disposition can keep the pathway clear. It steers you through all worries, it chases gloom away; there are no frets and furrows in any live wire's day. Alas and could Queen Titania appear to hear my plea, I'd say, "I won't detain you; here's what I fain would be! Make me a lively stepper, a wire of many coils, and fill me full of pepper and judging by a yearling colt, I do not dote on slumber, nor does it suit my taste to live as a back number and so, kind Queen, make haste!" And should her wand go waving, and should she say to me: "I've listened to your raving, a live wire you shall be!" I'd be almighty tickled. I'd chuckle and cavort till folks would say: "He's pickled!" and pass me with a snort. It seems that work is slumping, though, with the fairy clan, so I just keep on humping as best I may. But I bet Titania could do better live-wiring, I'll admit, but, as I've never met her, I try my hand at it.

PEGGY WALSH, East Boston

ALMA MARTEL, Lowell

THE BOSTON AMERICAN offers $5,000 in gold for photographs of lovely girls. To the girl declared by the judges to be the loveliest girl in New England, the American will pay $3,000 in gold. To the next girl in merit, $1,000 in gold. There will be two third prizes of $500 each. In awarding the prizes the judges will have in mind Arthur Brisbane's definition of beauty. Mr. Brisbane says beauty is "intelligence in a fine setting." The judges will study the photographs, first for intelligence, second for health, and third for physical beauty. There are no strings attached. Just send in the photograph of your wife, sweetheart, sister or friend. All photographs will be given careful treatment and will be returned when the contest is over. Address all mail to "Loveliest Girl Editor," Boston American, P. O. Box 239, Boston 9, Mass.

WILL THEY LOSE THEIR SMOKES?—The two men who would be hardest hit by an anti-smoking law are Barney Oldfield and "Uncle Joe" Cannon, veteran Congressman. Barney is seldom found awake without a cigar, while the last time we played dominoes with "Uncle Joe" at the Press Club in Washington he defeated us by using a smoke barrage. Both of these notables are remarkably healthy. —(c) U. & U.

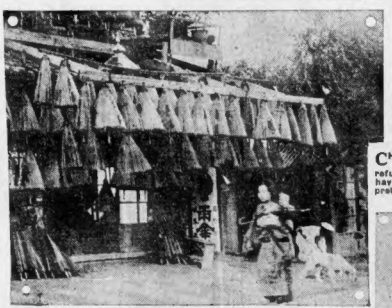
HITTING THE PIPE—Many Chinese still use opium despite the stringent regulations. Reformers in China are busy trying to teach these Celestials to use tobacco in place of the "pepsy dust." —(c) U. & U.

NO BLUE LAWS HERE—Natives in Belgian Congo do not pull at "Clear Havanas," but they do enjoy a good cool smoke. These long pipes are not such a bad idea, as any pipe smoker will testify. The nicotine disappears during the smoke's journey through seven feet of pipe stem. We imagine they must light each other's pipes, but what does a guy do when he's all alone? —(c) Underwood & Underwood.

SCRAMBLED BEAUTY — Mlle. Blanche Norel is said to be the prettiest and ugliest girl in France. She spurns movie offers, preferring to stick to her act at the Gaiety Theatre in Paris. —(c) K. & H.

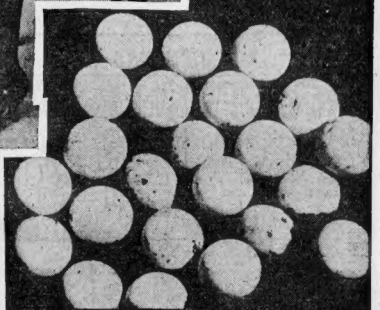
THEY ARE JUST LEARNING—The old-time Coreans in Seoul have been slow to adopt modern customs, but they have finally found that much pleasure is derived from smoking and they spend much time pulling their pipes in front of their queer little shops. The reformers will have a hard job getting them to quit the pipe. —(c) Underwood & Underwood.

TURKISH TROPHIES—The pipe and the girl. The pipe is more properly called a "hookah." The girl is a typical young lady of the better class. Will the antis stop the world smoking? —(c) U. & U.

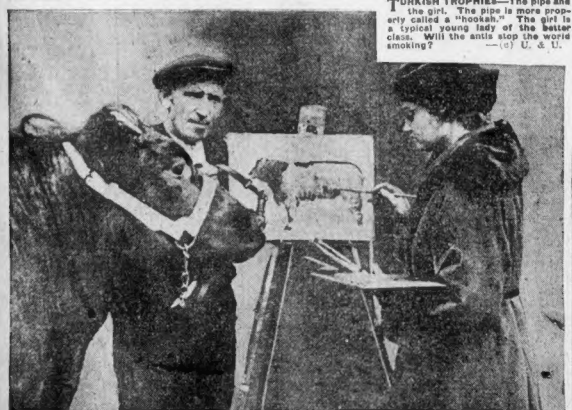


ADVERTISING IN JAPAN—The Orientals evidently believe in the power of display advertising. Here we have a photograph of the exterior of an umbrella maker's shop. Umbrellas of many colors and designs are displayed so as to attract the passerby, even the roof holding a number which can be seen for some distance down the street. The prices are not in evidence. —(c) International.

CHICAGO FEET—Miss Glen Darling offers very personal evidence to refute the story that all Chicago girls have big feet. She seems to have a pretty good understanding, at that. —(c) Int.



TWO TURTLES, SUNNY SIDE UP!—This cry may soon be heard at the beneries if the price of hen fruit advances much more. With "we one" paying $1.30 a dozen for the well-known hennery ovals, turtle eggs may be a welcome relief. Here is a flock of 23 turtle eggs, each but an inch or so long, but all of them good eating. How would you like to try a few scrambled? —(c) International.



PAINTING THE BULL—Far more constructive and remunerative than throwing it. Miss Ila McAfee of Gunnison, Colo., has made a decided impression with her paintings of cattle. She has made a particular study of them and is shown here painting a portrait of Lady Supreme, one of the prize-winning animals at the Live Stock Show in Chicago. Lady Supreme, by the way, is a perfect gentleman. If Miss McAfee makes her painting too realistic Lady Supreme is liable to poke his head through it. Painting bulls is very much on the order of wrapping up dynamite sticks. —(c) International.

JAZZ IN BORNEO—Frederick Burlingham found music one of the most interesting features of his expedition into Dutch Borneo. He declares that the moan of the saxaphone and the antics of the trap drummer have nothing on the product of a Borneo jazz band. Their instruments look queer to us, but they produce plenty of noise, which seems to be the big idea nowadays. —(c) International.

SO THIS IS AMERICA?—While this little fellow can never become President he may be sitting in Congress one of these days or conducting the business of a large corporation. —(c) Kadel & Herbert.

WANT YOUR FACE CHANGED?—Dr. Julian Bourguet, the French specialist and surgeon, who came into great prominence during the war through his remarkable facial operations, has arrived in America to straighten out some of our noses. The above photographs were taken of a patient whom Dr. Bourguet operated upon in Paris. Note the great change in the lines of the nose. Who's next? —(c) International.

I Can Help Give You More Bodily and Mental Vigor

In Two Weeks' Time in Many Instances

OVER 4,000,000 PEOPLE called on me for assistance during the past year.

Among those who have tried me are PHYSICIANS, former UNITED STATES SENATORS, MEMBERS OF CONGRESS, Judges of United States Courts, Generals of the United States Army and many prominent people.

EVEN POPE BENEDICT OF ROME WROTE ABOUT ME IN A NICE NOTE to the Director of the Pharmacy Normale of Paris.

If you are weak, irritable, easily upset, don't sleep well, are under great stress, strain or worry, or lack of loss in your blood is sapping your bodily and mental vigor, weakening your will power and thereby keeping you from making the money or the success in life that you should make, I would like for you to try me.

I am NUXATED IRON—organic iron. I am like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples.

I help make strong, forceful, red blooded men and beautiful, healthy, rosy-cheeked women.

Watch me from like me, your blood becomes pale, thin and watery and loses its power to change food into living tissue; therefore, nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good—you do not get the full strength out of it.

To prove to yourself what I can do get your doctor to take a specimen of your blood and make a "blood-count" of your red blood corpuscles, then try me for one month and have your "blood count" made and see how your red blood corpuscles have increased and how much stronger and better you feel; how the color has come back to your face and how much stronger and more steady your nerves now are. I will not injure your kidneys, liver or stomach. I am entirely different from ordinary metallic iron which people usually take. You need not lose a cent on me.

If I don't give you satisfactory results my manufacturers will refund your money. Get only me. Beware of imitators. I come in tablet form only—Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. At all druggists.

Dramatic Editor.

"The Acquittal" at the Hollis is an unusual and exceedingly absorbing play. It was written by Rita Weiman and produced by George M. Cohan. It is performed by a company of singular merit.

There are no buts about "The Acquittal." No mental reservations. No room for difference of opinion. Anybody who says it isn't a big play doesn't know the difference between a musical comedy and a moving picture.

In the first place Miss Weiman had a most enthralling and fascinating plot, and the plot is not blotched in the telling. Most American plays begin at the beginning or their plot and develop it to the end in three or four acts.

But you can't really tell a big story in a couple of hours of dramatic action. The French realize it and most big French plays jump into the high spots of their plot, summarize what has gone before in some terse introductory dialogue, and right away you are in the middle of a thrilling story moving like mad.

That's about what Miss Weiman has done in "The Acquittal." When the characters first enter the scene you feel that a very wonderful murder case has just been concluded with the triumphant acquittal of the defendant. For a few minutes you wonder why they brought in the audience in after the trial was over if it were such a whale of a case. Then you begin to find out that the trial wasn't a marker to what is to come.

A newspaper reporter is not satisfied with the verdict. He says that somebody murdered the person whose death caused the trial, and he won't stop until he finds the criminal. People in the household of the acquitted man begin to feel uncomfortable. One mystery follows another. The walls have ears.

A place like this relies greatly upon its unexpectedness and I am not going to ruin the plot by rehearsing it. But the story is carried along sanely, logically, without a hint of theatricalism or a suspicion of sensationalism. Nobody chews scenery. Nobody fires off pistols, waves knives or bellows like an Al Woods heroine. In fact, the voice is raised above ordinary conversational tones scarcely but a minute while the heroine tells her husband what she thinks of him.

The grip of this strange play is none the less remarkable for its absence of hokum, and for this the actors share the credit.

Not since Douglas Fairbanks played the reporter in "The Gentleman from Mississippi" has the role of a newspaper man been so well handled as by William Harrigan.

The new young man is the son of Ned Harrigan of the old firm of Harrigan and Hart, one of the cleverest comedians of a past generation. His appearance and voice suggest Fairbanks without copying him in any way. And Harrigan is a triumph of repression and intelligence.

Chrystal Herne, the daughter of another celebrated actor, James A. Herne of "Shore Acres" fame, plays the heroine, a woman who sticks to her husband through a murder trial, knowing him to be both unfaithful and guilty. Her acting deserved equal praise. She is an emotional actress of great power which was not weakened by the repression which is the rule of "The Acquittal."

George Parsons as the man who was acquitted has another of the despicable roles which he characterizes so well how to play. There was no redeeming feature to this character, and Parsons' picture is exactly the one light intended by the author.

I also liked the work and personality of Ann Mason in a role which probably does not make her happy. The half dozen men who played the murder trial reporters were all well chosen and performed their small services admirably.

COLUMBIA THEATRE—The program for the initial half of the week at Loew's Columbia Theatre is headed by four acts of comedy, singing, dancing and special burlesque, and a showing of an all-star special, "The Sap Head."

GAYETY THEATRE—Jean Bedinis' "Peek-a-Boo" company is the attraction at the Gayety. The company is large, the costumes new and the scenery elaborate. Clever comedians and pretty girls galore.

Plays That Remain

TREMONT THEATRE—"The Sweetheart Shop" began its second week of pleasure giving entrance at the Tremont Theatre last night. The happiest of spirits pervades the atmosphere of this shop and both performers and customers see to it that everybody is happy.

SHUBERT THEATRE—"East is West," at the Shubert Theatre, is now on the last three weeks of its long and successful run in Boston. This artistically produced comedy, with the appealing and altogether delightful Fay Bainter as Lotus, possesses a unique charm for theatregoers.

GLOBE THEATRE—Preparatory to the arrangements being made for the early New York engagement of the new and wondrous "Fermina," announced that the end of the Boston engagement at the Globe Theatre is close at hand.

COLONIAL THEATRE—The last two weeks of Charles Dillingham's musical comedy, "The Night Boat," which has been pulling to full crowds at the Colonial Theatre, began with last night's performance.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—A new member of the brilliant cast of "Vogues and Vanities," sent for the first time last evening, was Grace Fisher, who has several of the important numbers, including one or two new ones, assigned to her.

WILBUR THEATRE—Sam Bernard and Irene Bordoni, in the latest musical revue, "As You Were," continue to pack the Wilbur Theatre.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—Maude Fulton, in her own play, "The Humming Bird," started on the last week of her Boston engagement at the Plymouth Theatre last evening.

TREMONT TEMPLE—Another twelfth big week of D. W. Griffith's picturization of "Way Down East" began yesterday afternoon at Tremont Temple. The popularity attained by this Griffith production with Boston amusement lovers is without precedent.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE—Grant Mitchell is now on his fourth week in "The Champion" at Selwyn's Park Square Theatre, and the popularity of this attraction is growing with every performance.

Tell Business Men All the Truth About Russia

Mr. Edward A. Filene, great Boston merchant and founder of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and a director in the International Chamber of Commerce, gave a New York newspaper an interview which would be more interesting if it finished as logically as it started and were not diverted about half-way into propaganda for the League of Nations.

Mr. Filene is a wise man in this day and generation, and he is a truthful man, so we may depend upon a flat statement of facts which he makes. "Business conditions in this country are good," said Mr. Filene, "but we are threatened with commercial disaster if we do not sell the surplus stocks on hand and those which must be created if the immense war-time increase in production power is to be utilized. The most important thing is to export our surpluses, for unless our surplus food, raw material and other products go abroad, Europe cannot get back to normal production. Without normal production the European countries cannot buy our surplus products, pay the interest or principal of their debts to us, or keep their great populations from further disorders."

Mr. Filene goes on to tell us that we must go into the League of Nations and encourage Europe to come back to normal. Just how the League of Nations is going to encourage Europe to get back to normal we do not understand. Certainly Mr. Filene's notions about it must be very vague, for he makes no attempt to explain how the League of Nations is going to increase production in Europe.

There is no doubt in the world that this country is facing a most serious situation, and that if we do not succeed in selling a large amount of our goods abroad we shall be in danger, as Mr. Filene says, of a catastrophe. Just as the enormous purchases which France and England made at the beginning of the war saved us then from hard times, so a resumption of trade with Europe will save us now. But what darkens our hope of great exports to Europe? Several things, not one of which Mr. Filene has cared to mention, although, as a wise man, he knows them just as well as we do. But his Wilsonian obsession prevents him from telling the truth.

First, Germany cannot resume production until the indemnities which she must pay are liquidated at a sum that she can pay without destroying the "goose that lays the golden egg." For this condition France, England and Woodrow Wilson are responsible.

Second, the French government, being in the hands of war profiteers and the most reactionary of its bourgeoise class, will not face its financial condition and tax its rich, as they are taxed in this country and in England and everywhere else in the world. The French government is trying to avod the inevitable reckoning of this spendthrift policy by expliciting some other countries, Russia particularly, being her piece de resistance. France is also interested in keeping Germany economically prostrate. When we say France we do not mean the French people. We mean a war-drunk government of militarists and imperialists and profiteers.

Now, the pursuit of these two objects, which the Tory class and Tory government of England have aided until their impracticability has been shown by Russian victories and by the power of British labor to the practical British mind, has resulted in keeping the entire eastern section of Europe in a state of war. This includes Finland, Esthonia, Lithuania, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania, Turkey, Armenia, Syria, and, if we add the objects of British imperialism, Mesopotamia, Arabia and Persia, Ireland and Egypt, and, greatest of all, Russia. The object of the British Tories and French Imperialists for two years now has been to keep so many Russians under arms that the Russian Intellectuals have had to bend their minds so exclusively to the task of war that there has been no manpower, no thought for economic reconstruction in Russia. And, furthermore, this imperialistic policy has resulted in eliminating the necessary manpower for the upbuilding of the enormous railroad system which this greatest land empire in the world must have. This policy has also eliminated manpower for the creation of tremendous industries which this industrious, hardy white race, occupying a sixth of the arable earth's surface, with all of its resources unexploited, is entitled to.

These imperialistic Tory conspirators for the perpetration of the greatest sabotage which was ever conceived on earth, by keeping Russia at war, thus sought to prevent her from building up her power of production within herself, while France, England and Woodrow Wilson, misusing the power of the United States, resorted to the blockade of Russia, the most fiendish instrument ever devised for murdering innocent women and children.

We are on the verge of serious times in this country, but what we need is not to trifle with a trifling League of Nations, but to insist upon the opening of trade relations with Russia and upon peace between Russia and the rest of the world.

We want to insist upon permitting the Russian peasant to go back to his farm and buy American agricultural machinery, and everything else that a prosperous farmer would buy of a country full of diversified manufactures like America. We want to insist that France and England stop their intriguing to force the countries along Russia's border into war with Russia, so that the skilled workmen in Russia may go back to the factory and help build up those industries the productions of which will give them something to exchange with the United States. We want to insist that the Intellectuals of Russia may have a chance to consider the problems of peace, the organization of industry, of agriculture and of all forms of production.

Think what the resumption of trade relations with the United States will mean when it comes to full blast. Russia will need in the near future three or four hundred thousand locomotives and millions of freight and passenger cars. The job of furnishing Russia with railroad equipment which she needs will keep this country prosperous for a quarter of a century if we got nothing else from Russia's trade. We need to send over to Russia our spare young men, our technical experts in all kinds of industry and commerce, our civil engineers, our sanitary engineers, our railroad engineers. The Russian government wants them and will pay them all they are worth and probably a great deal more.

The present Russian revolutionary government has destroyed the last vestige of the old tyranny. That tyranny no longer exists, not even in its withering leaves, except in Paris and in London and in Warsaw and in Copenhagen. The task of destruction has been completed. Now, the Russians want to reconstruct, and peace will quickly eliminate those parts of their extreme Communistic program which prove to be inefficient.

Let Mr. Filene and all other intelligent business men who have been in Europe and had a chance to study things at first hand tell the business men the whole truth about the Russian situation. Our workingmen are just beginning to wake up after two years of ignorance and false leadership. Let the business men wake up to the need of immediate peace and friendship with Russia. We can help her make three blades of grass grow where only one grew before, and we can take one of the blades for our own compensation.

More Truth Than Poetry

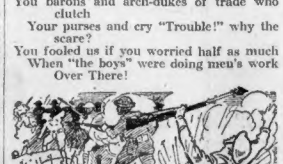
Dollars and Doughboys

By S. E. KISER

SEE here, you barons and arch-dukes of trade—
Merchants, manufacturers and so on—
You speak as weaklings who have grown afraid;
Where has your war-time faith and courage gone?
A little factory in a cross-roads town,
For lack of orders, is compelled to quit,
And you "big fellows" pull your banners down,
Howling, like frightened boys, before you're hit.

SUPPOSE the "boys" sent overseas had fled
In sudden fear when they heard the first shell screech;
Suppose the sight of the first stream running red
Had made them halt and engage in gloomy speech!
You would have called them cowards, and justly, too;
You would have felt ashamed of their timid fright;
But they did the job they were sent across to do;
They couldn't cancel orders—they had to fight!

YOU "big fellows" who profited while they fought,
Had courage then and confidence and cheer;
Where is your former dauntlessness, and what
Strong purpose underlies your whispered fear?
You barons and arch-dukes of trade who clutch
Your purses and cry "Trouble!" why the scare?
You fooled us if you worried half as much
When "the boys" were doing men's work Over There!



Criminals and Their Cure

By Rev. Albert E. George

REV. M. J. Murphy, chaplain of Charlestown State Prison, said lately that it is wrong to send to prison many men and women who have only the mentality of children.

This assertion is so true that it needs to be emphasized.

It means much in the future reform of prisoners and more in preventing them from being prisoners.

This is well known among those who have done any kind of reform prison work.

The sanity test would help to clear up the motives and why prisoners were driven to commit wrong.

Out of nine persons taken by me from prison in the last ten or more years with a view to render them a kind service and to give them a chance, I have found that all were mentally defective. Their habits were studied at close range, and their actions would often verify the conclusion that they were not wholly responsible.

With all the charges against these young women, I found them also exhibiting some of the finest traits of character, like kindness, tenderness, sympathy and willingness to render a good turn readily and often under trying conditions.

It often strikes me that we have made too much of the weak side without aiming to discover the strong side.

Judges cannot do other than to sentence these offenders to punishment, because they have only the testimony the facts in the case, and upon such testimony must base the sentences they mete.

But back of the testimony that decides the sentence of a prisoner is the personal weakness that has caused his wrongdoing. It is not disclosed until one has lived with the offender during the period of parole. From observation it seems plain to many of us that wrongdoing is more of a physical than a moral weakness.

During my longer experience I am convinced that we need to segregate prisoners more than we do. The parole system is excellent, if people would be less suspicious of those who are unfortunate to have to live under it.

I found such excellent qualities in prisoners and such desires to do better that the best instances of kindness to me personally have been rendered by those whom the courts have marked with the scarlet letter.

So it seems to me that a sanity test should be more generally considered.

You Can Do This Through the Xmas Basket Fund

MORE years ago than we like to remember a Good Man died. He was a man that everybody liked.

The little children and the dogs used to follow him on the street. And someone has said that when dogs follow a man he is indeed a good man.

This Good Man died suddenly. All his life long he used to try to make other people happy. Among those whom he made especially happy was the woman he made his wife and two small children who knew him as Daddy.

But like many another good man who tried to make others happy, this good man did not provide enough money for his own to keep them as he was wont to keep them during his life.

An aged country lawyer who loved the Good Man during his life, volunteered to save from the estate enough to keep the wolf from the door of the home the good man had left.

Yet debts are debts and money is money, and when a man dies in this struggling world, those whom he owes must have their money.

To make a long story short, the Christmas season was approaching and the good man's wife and little ones did not have enough left from the Good Man's estate to get them their Christmas dinner.

And when the good man died it was such a blow to his wife and little ones that each night they huddled about the kitchen fire and cried and cried and cried.

"Aren't we going to have any Christmas turkey tomorrow?" asked the youngest of the children, a wee tot of a girl, on Christmas eve. And the mother's heart was too full of grief to answer her child's question. So she dropped to her knees and midst sobs and tears prayed for the soul of the Good Man who really was to blame for his family's plight. And the kiddies prayed, too.

Just as they were praying, the doorbell rang. The little boy went to the door. Outside the snow was falling in blinding drifts. His eyes saw nothing but a snow-covered field where in happier days the Good Man had sat in the long Summer evenings and told him of the ships that sailed to lands of sunshine and happiness.

A basket was on the snow-covered doorstep. A man was half running, half staggering away down the street as far as the boy could see.

The boy carried the basket into the kitchen. He tore off its paper covering. And there lay a big, fat, juicy turkey. And all around the turkey were a big, yellow squash, red, shining cranberries, bunches of green-tipped celery and all the other fixin's of a bountiful Christmas dinner.

Perhaps the grief-stricken widow knew where the turkey came from. The children were too young to know about such things. All they knew was that Santa Claus had come to their doorstep that evening and all they were sorry for was that they hadn't heard the bells of his sleigh quick enough to see the reindeer.

Wasn't that a happy Christmas for that poor, fatherless family? We'll tell the world it was the happiest Christmas ever.

Don't some of you people who read this want to make some other family like the one described as happy this Christmas? OF COURSE you do. And of course YOU WILL.

How? Send the price of the dinner, the price of part of such a dinner to the American Christmas Basket Fund, and the rest will be easy. Perhaps some other day some other American man will tell the world of your kind deed as this American man has told you of the kindness of the old country lawyer.

You never can tell!

SAYS BIBLE OPPOSES DIVORCE EVIL

By Rev. John Roach Straton,
Pastor Calvary Baptist Church, New York City.

ALL that is good in our civilization has drawn its inspiration from the Bible. Only as men have departed from Bible teaching and disobeyed God has disease, strife, suffering and sorrow fallen upon them.

We will never see a right marital relationship re-established between the sexes until we come back and learn the truth from the Bible.

Man and Wife One Flesh

One of the first things that God did, following the creation, was to establish the institution of marriage by giving the woman to the man, and He there proclaimed the fundamental truth in the whole matter of marriage when he said that "they shall be one flesh." Henceforth, therefore, nothing could separate them because they were one.

Divorce came through the degeneration of the race following its rebellion against God and its fall into sin. Moses tolerated divorce only because of the loose ideals of his age. In Deuteronomy xxiv, 1-4, he says: "When a man hath taken a wife and married her, and it comes to pass that she find no favor in his eyes because he hath found some uncleanness in her, then let him write her a bill of divorcement, and give it in her hand, and send her out of his house," etc.

Varying Interpretations

Theologians from the earliest times have been much divided in their interpretation of just what these words mean and just what they allow. Shortly before Christ's age the school of Shammah held that a man could not be divorced from his wife legally unless she was guilty of unchastity and infamy. The school of Illiel, however, took an opposite position and thought that a wife could be divorced for very light reasons; for instance, if she did not dress her husband's meat well, or, if he found another woman whom he liked better. Akiba went even further and thought that there was a sufficient cause for divorce if a wife was not agreeable to her husband.

The writings of Josephus and Philo show that in their time the Jews sanctioned divorce for very trivial causes.

What Jesus Thought About Divorce

The New Testament also makes this plain. When the Pharisees questioned Jesus, they asked: "Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause?" (Matt. xix, 3.) They were endeavoring, of course, to entrap Him, but He defeated their purpose. He brushed by their light interpretation of Moses' law and explained that it was only because of the loose ideals and the grossness of a corrupt age that there had been any divorce law at all. He told them that Moses "because of the hardness of your hearts suffered you to put away your wife, but from the beginning, it was not so." He then referred them to the original institution of marriage and the true relationship between husband and wife, as follows:

"Have ye not read that He which made them at the beginning made them male and female, and said, For this cause shall a man leave father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife; and they twain shall be one flesh? Wherefore they are no more twain, but one flesh. What, therefore, God hath joined together, let not no man put asunder." (Matt. xix. 3-8.)

Only One Ground of Divorce

Jesus then proclaimed the truth, founded upon the fact that every right marriage is a union of both spirit and body which cannot be broken. To break it and to follow such violation of God's law by remarriage He taught is mortal sin. Here is his explicit teaching upon that question: "I say unto you Whosoever shall put away his wife except it be for fornication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery; and whoso marrieth her which is put away doth commit adultery." (Matt. xix., 9.) And in His Sermon on the Mount He also proclaimed this inexorable truth. (See Matthew v., 31, 32.)

There is only one ground, therefore, under God's law which makes divorce justifiable. Consequently, the people of this easy-going age are not justified in putting away their husbands and wives for any trivial cause, or even for very serious causes, are guilty of the grossest sin, and they will be held accountable by God at the Judgment Day. If the divorce was not upon Scriptural ground.

To the Editor

Editor Boston American:

Dear Sir—I can give you my heartiest congratulations on your editorial in the Boston American, which I can say is the only paper in the United States which opposes an unjust movement against Jews.

Now is the time for Mr. Henry Ford to stop and consider.

Yours sincerely,
A CITIZEN.

FORCES MAY EXIST STILL UNKNOWN TO MAN

By Edgar Lucien Larkin,
Director Mt. Lowe Observatory.

Will science discover a method of utilizing the finer forces of Nature in work of mechanical manipulation?—S. W. STRATTON, Baltimore.

THIS I am unable to answer, because I do not know if there are finer forces in existence than those already known.

Electricity and magnetism are refined to the limit of imagination. Gravitation is so fine, if that is the proper word to use, that one can scarcely imagine any finer. It is so delicate that it attracts atoms and molecules as well as their aggregate into masses from the smallest meteor to the largest sun. Electrons are pure electric centres of force, but these are so small that there are trillions in a line of them one inch in length. The force actuating in the form of ultra-ultra violet energy waves, whose lengths are known to be as short as 250,000 to the inch, is refined beyond conception, yet powerful, for the waves of the higher order—that is, the most rapid in undulation—perform these at the excessively rapid rate in some cases of as many as 500 billion times per second. The force is fine as it handles such short waves, yet powerful as it sets up such inconceivably rapid oscillations. It would appear to be so, for the gigantic suns exert titanic force to send out energy waves with a velocity of 186,324 miles per second. But a common candle flame sends out energy waves with the same set and fixed specific speed.

Revolutions of electrons around magnetons is now supposed by those who make delicate spectroscopic experiments and tests to be the cause of energy emission. Then the revolutions of electrons in a filmy insect, the "fire-fly," are as rapid as those in sun spots, emit identical wave lengths. And the spectroscope reveals the startling fact that there are waves in some regions of their spectra, that are of equal length. One would think that rates of revolutions of electrons in giant suns would be millions of times more rapid than in a minute insect. Yet the waves in several cases are of the same length.

From this it may be inferred that specific speeds of electronic revolutions are the same for all the atoms of the same kind of element. Fine and powerful are two words that apply. But it appears that energy from the sun that falls on earth has to be stored in the very remarkable element—carbon—before man can utilize it effectually.

True it is that the huge mirror set up in the Cawston South Pasadena ostrich farm a number of years ago sent the rays of the sun to a boiler in its focus, generated steam and ran a pumping engine. This was using one of Nature's finer forces, the energy which appears under the name of heat when it hits matter.

But the concave mirror is no longer used, the same pump is actuated by energy liberated from a hydrocarbon, in the form of oil, burned under the same boiler. The mirror method of getting finer force from the sun was not a financial success. "Tapping the reservoirs of energy of the universe," a term that went the rounds a few years since, has not been brought about yet. Molecules have not been made to give up their energy yet, without burning oxygen and carbon to do the work of separating molecules of water into steam; or the revolution of conductors of electricity in some type of dynamo, in the well-known electro-magnetic field of force.

LOOK FOR THE GOOD.

You may wish your husband or your wife were a different sort, but the fact remains that you must accept what you have.

More than likely your life partner is secretly wishing the same thing about you and your natural disposition.

You, perhaps, are not all that she imagined a husband should be.

Maybe you have more traits absolutely displeasing to your mate than she has displeasing to you.

Surely, when you were married, you did not expect to find perfection, did you?

If you did, you had never studied human nature.

It is best to try to overlook the little faults and see the good traits.

It is bound to make you happier, and also, if you be really hunting for the really good points about a person you think you know well, you will find out so much more to admire that you will forget the unpleasant things and wonder how so much intelligence and loveliness could have chosen to put up with you for a lifetime.

When you begin to watch for things to admire you are on the road to true happiness.
